SENATOR NORRIS TO SEEK RE-ELECTION; DEFIES PRESIDENT

Reconsiders Plan To Retire; Opponent Is Picked

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—In a remarkable statement, bristling with defiance of the Hoover administration and its leaders, Senator George W. Norris, the veteran Republican insurgent from Nebraska, served notice today that he intends to stand for re-election on a platform that boasts rather than apologizes for his party irregularities.

"I would rather be right than regular," said Norris.

Particular interest attaches to the Nebraska senator's decision to run again, for he was the only Republican senator to leave his party openly during the 1928 election and came out flat-footedly for Governor Al Smith.

Because of this and because of his lengthy record of party insurgency in the senate, the Nebraska asserts that he has been singled out by the administration forces for discipline and defeat next year. Norris has planned to retire at the end of his present term, but he now declares that to do so under existing conditions would amount to a "political cowardice" of which he is incapable.

"My opponent in this contest has already been selected in the person of Mr. McKelvie (ex-Governor Samuel R. McKelvie)," said Norris.

This has been apparent ever since he was named by President Hoover on the new farm board, and recent developments including statements by Mr. McKelvie himself, make it plain that he is to be the candidate representing the administration or if for any reason it is later decided he is not the most available man, some other candidate will be substituted for him.

For more than a quarter of a century Norris has been a consistent and outstanding insurgent in congress. With the late "Bob" La Follette he shared the leadership in virtually every revolt against the party machinery that has taken place in that time, beginning with the overthrow of "Cannonism" in the house twenty years ago, and continuing down to today when he is opposing administration policy in tariff and its methods of farm relief.

"I offer no apology for the course I have pursued," said the Nebraska senator, after a lengthy review of his record of opposition. "And the only promise I now make is that if I am re-elected I will continue to pursue it. It is the judgment of the people of Nebraska that my course has been wrong—if they want a senator who cares more for party regularity than political righteousness—then they should select someone else to take my place."

The whole insurgent group of the senate, which numbers variously from eight to twelve and includes such figures as Borah (R) of Idaho, La Follette (R) of Wisconsin, probably will come to the aid of the veteran Nebraska for personal as well as political reasons.

If he is defeated in the primary, Norris will be "drafted" to run independently.

The apprehension of the insurgent group over what the future holds for them has been growing for some time, and really came to a head with the appointment of Otto H. Kahn, New York banker, as treasurer of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, headed by Senator Moses (R) of New Hampshire, a regular.

Regulars would raise large sums of money to be sent into their states to finance fights against them.

Some of this apprehension disappeared today with Kahn's announcement in New York that he would not accept the appointment. Whether the position will be offered to another is uncertain.

GRANTED ENTRY

Barred several times from entering the United States because of their expressed "radical" views, Count and Countess Karolyi, above, Hungarian socialists, have been granted permission to enter the country after a statement by Secretary of State Stimson.

Karolyi was president of Hungary for five months. The countess, like her husband, is a lecturer and an intellectual.

TWO ARRESTED, TWO SOUGHT AFTER AUTO RUNS INTO HEARSE

Coffin Is Damaged; Liquor Found In Wrecked Auto

FRONTON, O., Oct. 30.—Two men are under arrest here today and two others are the objects of an intensive police hunt as the result of the quartet's automobile crashing into a funeral procession on the Gallipolis-Huntington road near Proctorville yesterday afternoon.

The hearse in the procession was demolished, the coffin containing the body of a woman was slightly damaged, and the funeral entourage was held up for more than an hour when the speeding automobile, which is said to have carried four intoxicated men, crashed into the procession.

Two of the four men escaped. One in police custody gave his name as Eugene Betts, of Parkersburg, W. Va., and the other refused to talk. The latter will be grilled tomorrow.

Lawrence County authorities are searching for the fugitives one of whom is believed to be seriously hurt. A trail of blood led from the scene of the wreck.

Authorities say they found six half-pints of liquor and several empty bottles in the wreck of the car.

The hearse was carrying the body of Mrs. Vesta Shockley to a burial ground in Rome Township.

CENSURE PICTURES IN CIGARETTE ADS

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—Censuring the use of American girls' pictures in advertisements of cigarettes, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society prepared to hold its sixtieth annual convention here today.

The meeting is so largely attended that guests from out of the state have not been able to attend a single meeting as yet.

Mrs. Ella Boole, national president, was the main speaker on the program.

AUTO KILLS WOMAN; UMBRELLA BLAMED

ZANESVILLE, O., Oct. 30.—Miss Mary Belle Abbott, 68-year-old spinster, of Malta, near here, was instantly killed last night when she was struck by an automobile which was said to have been driven by R. P. Hummel of Zanesville.

Miss Abbott was enroute to the postoffice, in front of which the accident occurred. It was raining and the woman is said to have pulled her umbrella so close over her head that she was unable to see the approaching machine.

She was a native of Stockport and funeral service will be held there.

GUESTS FLEE FIRE

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 30.—Fear-stricken when clouds of smoke filled their rooms from a fire which broke out in a basement court, more than 100 guests of the Colonial Hotel here fled into the streets early today in their night attire. No one was injured and only slight damage was done by the blaze which is believed originated from a lighted cigarette dropped in a pile of barrels and packing material.

BOXER IS ILL

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—Suffering from a throat cancer, Eddie McGoorty, middleweight veteran, was reported to be in serious condition at a sanitarium here today. Noted for his scientific ring generalship, McGoorty came near the championship during his career, but never succeeded in getting the crown.

Senator Fess Will Speak At Last Rites For Burton

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The business of official Washington was perceptibly slowed today as President Hoover, members of the cabinet and congress, prepared to pay tribute to the memory of Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, who died at his home here Monday night.

A figure in the nation's legislative life for forty years and a power in the present congress, the veteran Ohio statesman was to be accorded the senate's highest honor—a state funeral in its chamber.

President Hoover, who expressed his deep regret at the passing of a personal friend and close adviser, accepted the senate's invitation to attend the funeral.

Many members of the house, in which Sen. Burton also served, returned to the city especially for the services in which they were asked to join by the senate.

Because of Senator Burton's long activity in international affairs, the diplomatic corps was expected to attend the funeral en masse, members of the supreme court and the cabinet were a part of the official party invited to participate in the rites.

Senator Burton, who would have reached his seventy-eighth birthday in December, had not married. Several nieces and nephews were among the family mourners.

The senate, which laid aside the highly controversial tariff bill yesterday and today to honor Burton,

CLEVELAND MUSEUM SURRENDERS IVORY CARVING TO OWNERS

Learn Diptych Was Stolen From Yugoslavia

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Convinced that the priceless ivory diptych in the art museum here was the one stolen from the Zagreb cathedral in Yugoslavia and to the further international complications, authorities of the Cleveland art museum surrendered the carving to Dr. Leonidas Pitamic, Yugoslav minister who returned with it to Washington today.

The carving, one of the most important of the world-famous Cleveland collection of ivories, had left a trail across Europe and the United States that covered service men of Yugoslavia, France and the United States have been trying to uncover for months.

It is the only complete work of its kind in existence. It is composed of four panels bound together by a huge jewel in the center. The jewel, a carved topaz as big as a dollar, is missing. The museum here never received it. A paste imitation was substituted.

Sometime during the summer of 1927 the ivory was taken from its silver frame in the vaults of the cathedral and a copy believed to have been substituted.

In June 1928 it was in a Paris gallery, from whom it was bought by curators of the Cleveland museum through a New York agency.

TURNED UP FOR OLD MURDER BY COUSIN

GREENUP, Ky., Oct. 30.—Roy "Bully" Floyd, 45, will go on trial in circuit court here Friday for the eight-year-old slaying of his cousin, William Floyd.

After the death of William in October, 1921, Roy fled to Pontiac, Mich., where he lived with his family under an alleged assumed name.

His identity was unknown until recently when another cousin and a second man held-up and robbed him of $25.

Floyd said he was recognized by his cousin, who told him he would expose his identity as a fugitive from justice, if charges against his cousin and the hold-up man were pressed.

When Roy refused to waive prosecution against the highwaymen, the cousin "squealed" and Roy was arrested on the old murder charge.

Roy arranged bond of $5,000 for his appearance and returned to Pontiac, Mich. He is expected to plead self-defense at his trial.

ENJOYS TAG DAY

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—It was "tag" day for Leon B. Franks yesterday, and today, the man must appear in police court and plead to charges of violating the local traffic code fourteen times.

Franks was given that many tags yesterday when he allegedly broke the parking limit on a downtown street. He said he ignored the tags because he was immune from prosecution because his license was issued in Logan County.

He may have to pay a $3 fine for each offense.

MARKET RALLIES AT OPEN WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Stock prices rallied at the opening today in the wake of yesterday's hectic 16,410,000-share session.

Ten thousand shares of Radio sold at 29, half a point higher. United States Steel, traditional bellwether of the market, opened 3 points higher at 177.

Twenty thousand shares of Consolidated Gas opened 3-4 higher at 92 1-4.

The rally embraced practically the entire list.

New Haven opened at 92, up 2 1-8; Canadian Pacific 209 1-4, up 1-4 and Erie 57 1-8, up 1-8.

These gains had a distinctly optimistic effect in the financial district.

DEFECTIVE FLUE BLAMED FOR FIRE

CARROLLTON, O., Oct. 30.—A spark from defective wiring, which is believed to have fallen into a tank of naphtha, today is held responsible for the $500,000 fire which destroyed the plant of the Tuscan Tire and Rubber Company here yesterday afternoon.

Though the plant was equipped with an automatic sprinkler system, it proved inadequate against the flames.

The three-story brick building was destroyed.

PLANS READY FOR HALLOWE'EN HERE

PREPARE to make whoopee Thursday night when hobnobbers will have their inning, ghosts will walk unhampered and black cats, and pumpkins faces and bats and all of those eerie things, will be abroad in the dark of the night.

For Thursday night is Halloween and the Xenia Retail Merchants Association has arranged things so that Xenians will make merry that night in a gala downtown carnival that will be featured by a parade of all the weird things that come into being on this one night of the year.

Masked revelers are expected to throng the streets for the celebration and as a result, the business section of the city will be turned over to merry-making that night. Everybody is expected to disguise himself for the occasion and if you come to the party wearing your right face, no one will know you anyway.

Merchants making plans for the occasion have arranged for Green St. and Main St. between Detroit and Green Sts., to be roped off completely for the scene of the festivities. During the parade, however, all traffic will also be stopped on Detroit St., between Second and Market Sts., and on Main St., between Whiteman and King Sts.

The parade is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m. and business men in charge say that it will start promptly. Three bands and possibly a fourth, will add music to the festivities and will keep the marchers in step. The O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band, the Bath Twp. School Band and the Osborn Band have already been booked.

The parade will end at a judges' stand to be erected near the Barbour fountain at the Main St. entrance of the Court House. Here judges will select winners of fifty prizes donated to reward the most grotesquely costumed marchers in different classifications. Here also, a number of contests will be conducted, such as hog calling, coin hunting, apple eating, doughnut eating and pie eating contests and buck and wing and Charleston dancing contests.

There will also be a band concert at the platform and the spirit of revelry will be permitted to hold full sway, unconfined by police regulations or the ordinary conventions. Merchants are giving this party for Xenians and everyone else who wants to take part and are hoping for and expecting a record crowd of merry-makers.

SPECULATION RIFE ON APPOINTMENT OF BURTON SUCCESSOR

More Than Twenty Suggested; Donahay Not Interested

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Speculation was rampant in Ohio political circles today as to who will be selected to succeed Senator Theodore E. Burton, who died in Washington Monday night, at his post in the nation's capitol.

More than twenty possibilities have been suggested, including four Toledans, five Republicans from Cincinnati, five Clevelanders and other outstanding Republicans from other parts of the state. Gov. Cooper's decision, which will not be announced until after Senator Burton's funeral, will rest largely upon public opinion, it is understood.

Among the possibilities suggested for the office are:

Former Congressman Roscoe McCulloch of Canton; Charles L. Knight, Akron newspaper man; James A. White of Columbus, former anti-saloon league superintendent of Ohio; William C. Proctor, Cincinnati soap manufacturer; W. F. Wiley, Cincinnati newspaper publisher; Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives; Walter F. Brown of Toledo, postmaster general in the Hoover cabinet; Grove Patterson, Toledo newspaper publisher; Marshall Shepley of Toledo; John N. Willys, Toledo manufacturer; former congressman James T. Begg of Sandusky; Rupert Beetham, state prohibition administrator of Cadiz; Charles Simeral, Steubenville publisher; and Charles R. Frederickson, Coshocton manufacturer.

Cleveland possibilities include Carmel A. Thompson, former treasurer of the United States and former secretary of state of Ohio; James R. Garfield son of the former president; William Boyd, attorney; Paul Howland, former member of congress, and Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee.

SHOOTS WOMAN AND COMMITS SUICIDE

DENISON, O., Oct. 30.—What is believed to have been a "lover's quarrel" today had led to the death of a man and the serious wounding of a woman and the suicide of a third.

James S. Woods, 45, a steel mill worker, is the dead man.

He went to the home of Mrs. Anna Walters, the widow, yesterday afternoon, where the couple is said to have quarreled.

Woods, becoming infuriated, shot and seriously wounded the widow, who ran into the street and collapsed.

He turned the gun on himself and fired a bullet into his own temple. He died in a hospital last night.

The two are said to have "kept company" for some time and Woods' jealousy over the visit of another man is believed to have caused the argument which was climaxed by tragedy.

SOVIET PLANE IS DUE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The plane, Land of the Soviets, and its crew of four who have travelled over Russia, Asia, Alaska, Canada and the United States is expected to arrive at Curtiss Airport in Valley Stream, L. I., this afternoon.

A reception program to be carried out on the field has been arranged by the Society of Friends of the Soviet Union and the American Trading Corporation. Mayor Walker will receive the flyers at City Hall tomorrow.

ROSENWALD SAVES EMPLOYEES' STOCKS

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Pledging his personal fortune of millions of dollars, Julius Rosenwald has guaranteed the stock market accounts of 40,000 employees of Sears Roebuck and Company, according to a copyright story today in the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Rosenwald's action was to protect his employees from the danger of having their savings swept away by present market tendencies according to the story.

The announcement was welcomed today as a "bull" factor which may assist in ending the present slump and help with an upward trend in trading here.

The accounts are guaranteed regardless of what stocks are represented, according to Rosenwald's plan.

The millionaire executive of Sears Roebuck and Company formulated the plan after the disastrous plunge of prices last Thursday.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS EXCUSED OF CHARGE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 30.—Four of the University of Michigan's first string football men were back in the good graces of authorities here today after rumors had it that they were to be dismissed because of a train missing episode in Chicago last weekend.

Capt. Truskowski, Gembs, Hudson and Heston were the men who failed to catch the team's private car in Chicago Saturday night for the trip home after the Illinois game.

After explaining to Coach Harry Kipke that the episode was inadvertent, their excuses were accepted.

Queen Marie Faces Fate of Exiled Son

Queen Marie of Rumania, who is threatened with banishment from her country. Bitter at the treatment received from the hands of Premier Dr. Julius Maniu, she is leaving her native land shortly for foreign climes, thus abandoning her political ambitions and her dream of being a Rumanian "Queen Victoria." There is talk of Prince Carol's being named as a regent in the event of another vacancy, which is expected shortly because of the distressing illness of Miron Cristea, a member of the cabinet.

DEFEATS BLIZZARD OVER CONTINENTAL DIVIDE BY LANDING

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Pilot James E. Doles today had beaten a two-day blizzard on the continental divide of New Mexico to bring his western air express passenger liner safe into port.

Doles landed his ship with two passengers and two other crew members aboard in a small snow-covered field near Trechado, N. M., Monday, to save the ship and five lives.

After more than twenty-four hours of isolation during which an intensive air and ground search was begun, Doles seized a break in the storm to drive the powerful tri-motored ship into the air and land it two hours later at Albuquerque, N. M.

By this feat, Doles kept intact a record for safe flying for his company.

The passengers were Dr. Abraham Ward, San Francisco dental surgeon and official of the Commercial Alloys Corporation and W. E. Merz, former big league baseball pitcher, now a New York buyer of woolen fabrics.

Doles flew into a blinding snow storm soon after leaving Holbrook on a scheduled hop to Albuquerque, enroute to Kansas City.

He turned to dodge the storm, and when the storm closed in about him, made what he called a "precautionary landing" in the field.

He was forty-five miles from a telephone and five miles from the nearest house.

During a freezing day and night the crew and passengers took refuge in an abandoned house.

During the second day of their wait, the plane's occupants were visited by a woman who had seen the ship come down, and walked five miles through the snow to offer aid.

At that time, however, Doles, knowing that a search was in progress, determined to get back into the air.

After digging the snow from around the giant liner's landing wheels, he made a perfect take-off.

Two hours later he was at the Albuquerque airport of the Western Air Express.

Doles said: "I could see down below not a very large place but it looked safe and I got down there and got down quick."

"We thought then that the storm would clear and so we waited at the ship with the idea of taking off later in the afternoon (Monday)."

"I found an old vacant house and we all moved over there."

"By this time the snow was more than a foot deep on the ground."

"I built a fire then, but we like to freeze to death. Our food and water were gone."

"We stuck there until 1:30 p. m. (Mountain Standard time)."

"It was just starting to snow again when we took off."

"The weather appeared impassable, and so I sat the ship down at the first safe place I could find."

"I would have telephoned so as to have avoided worry to relatives and friends of those who were with us, but there was no telephone within many miles of where we were."

Mertz was returning from a world-encircling trip. Dr. Ward was enroute from San Francisco to Fort Worth, Tex., to address a convention of 500 delegates of a dental society.

While the search was on, the wives of Doles, his co-pilot, Allen Darrie, and Robert L. Britten, steward of the missing air liner said they were sure their husbands would return. "Jimmy will be home tomorrow," Mrs. Doles said.

"I recalled the T. A. T. disaster," Doles explained. "That is the reason I came down when the snow storm cut off the visibility. I couldn't afford to take any chances and fly blind."

The snow began to blind his vision when he passed over Holbrook, the pilot said. He circled low and picked the first smooth stretch he could find and there set the ship down with no difficulty.

Two box lunches and two thermos bottles of hot coffee furnished the five men food. Co-pilot Allen C. Barrie of Burbank, Cal., procured some sandwiches at a ranchhouse some miles away. R. L. Britton of Los Angeles was the steward.

None of the five men remembered to ask the name of a woman who braved the storm Monday to reach the plane when she heard it roar low overhead. She directed the five men to the deserted farm house which afforded them shelter.

BUCYRUS CITY OFFICIALS ARE REBUKED BY GRAND JURY PROBE

BUCYRUS, O., Oct. 30.—Failing to "fix criminal responsibility sufficiently to warrant an indictment" the Crawford County grand jury, after an eight-day session, today has sharply rebuked Mayor Arthur Schuler, Service Director Clarence Kober, and Superintendent of Waterworks Roy Riley.

The city officials were criticized for permitting conditions to exist whereby money persistently disappeared from the cash drawers and safes in the city water and garbage office.

Reinstatement of Miss Lucille Hertzler, cashier of the water office, who was suspended recently because of indiscreet charges which she made, was also recommended by the grand jury.

Miss Hertzler was suspended after she charged that Miss Edith Ferrall, cashier in the water office now, was responsible for at least a part of the alleged shortages and was holding her job because of political connections.

The former girl employee now has a suit pending in the common pleas court against Mayor Schuler and Service Director Kober, demanding reinstatement.

After digging the snow from around the giant liner's landing wheels, he made a perfect take-off.

Two hours later he was at the Albuquerque airport of the Western Air Express.

Doles said: "I could see down below not a very large place but it looked safe and I got down there and got down quick."

"We thought then that the storm would clear and so we waited at the ship with the idea of taking off later in the afternoon (Monday)."

"I found an old vacant house and we all moved over there."

"By this time the snow was more than a foot deep on the ground."

"I built a fire then, but we like to freeze to death. Our food and water were gone."

"We stuck there until 1:30 p. m. (Mountain Standard time)."

"It was just starting to snow again when we took off."

"The weather appeared impassable, and so I sat the ship down at the first safe place I could find."

"I would have telephoned so as to have avoided worry to relatives and friends of those who were with us, but there was no telephone within many miles of where we were."

Mertz was returning from a world-encircling trip. Dr. Ward was enroute from San Francisco to Fort Worth, Tex., to address a convention of 500 delegates of a dental society.

While the search was on, the wives of Doles, his co-pilot, Allen Darrie, and Robert L. Britten, steward of the missing air liner said they were sure their husbands would return. "Jimmy will be home tomorrow," Mrs. Doles said.

"I recalled the T. A. T. disaster," Doles explained. "That is the reason I came down when the snow storm cut off the visibility. I couldn't afford to take any chances and fly blind."

The snow began to blind his vision when he passed over Holbrook, the pilot said. He circled low and picked the first smooth stretch he could find and there set the ship down with no difficulty.

Two box lunches and two thermos bottles of hot coffee furnished the five men food. Co-pilot Allen C. Barrie of Burbank, Cal., procured some sandwiches at a ranchhouse some miles away. R. L. Britton of Los Angeles was the steward.

None of the five men remembered to ask the name of a woman who braved the storm Monday to reach the plane when she heard it roar low overhead. She directed the five men to the deserted farm house which afforded them shelter.

DEFEATS BLIZZARD OVER CONTINENTAL DIVIDE BY LANDING

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Pilot James E. Doles today had beaten a two-day blizzard on the continental divide of New Mexico to bring his western air express passenger liner safe into port.

Doles landed his ship with two passengers and two other crew members aboard in a small snow-covered field near Trechado, N. M., Monday, to save the ship and five lives.

After more than twenty-four hours of isolation during which an intensive air and ground search was begun, Doles seized a break in the storm to drive the powerful tri-motored ship into the air and land it two hours later at Albuquerque, N. M.

By this feat, Doles kept intact a record for safe flying for his company.

The passengers were Dr. Abraham Ward, San Francisco dental surgeon and official of the Commercial Alloys Corporation and W. E. Merz, former big league baseball pitcher, now a New York buyer of woolen fabrics.

Doles flew into a blinding snow storm soon after leaving Holbrook on a scheduled hop to Albuquerque, enroute to Kansas City.

He turned to dodge the storm, and when the storm closed in about him, made what he called a "precautionary landing" in the field.

He was forty-five miles from a telephone and five miles from the nearest house.

During a freezing day and night the crew and passengers took refuge in an abandoned house.

During the second day of their wait, the plane's occupants were visited by a woman who had seen the ship come down, and walked five miles through the snow to offer aid.

At that time, however, Doles, knowing that a search was in progress, determined to get back into the air.

After digging the snow from around the giant liner's landing wheels, he made a perfect take-off.

Two hours later he was at the Albuquerque airport of the Western Air Express.

Doles said: "I could see down below not a very large place but it looked safe and I got down there and got down quick."

Mother's Fight Wins

The steadfast battle waged for nearly two years by Mrs. Josephine Kelly, above, mother of Leo Pat Kelly, killer of Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, Los Angeles society woman at Los Angeles, in one of the west's most celebrated murder cases, has been crowned with success in the final decision of the supreme court overruling the decision of a judge that Kelly must hang for first degree murder. The court, instead, reduced the crime to manslaughter and sentenced Kelly from one to ten years in prison.

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—What price alimony!

The price is plenty, because alimony is undoubtedly the costliest one-sided institution in the country. Consider the case of Gordon C. Thorne, millionaire grandson of the founder of a well-known mail-order house, who is on the road to a substantial depletion of his fortune via the alimony route.

Thorne has contributed approximately $400,000 to the support of his ex-wives. If these figures are staggering, here's an item that's flattening. Thorne has paid approximately $2,000,000 for his matrimonial ventures! The estimates are those of George L. Schein, his attorney. They include marriage, support, divorce, court fees, lawyers, and alimony.

Thirteen years ago the young millionaire took his first wife, Virginia Milner. He lost her via divorce five years later, and promised her $750 monthly alimony as long as she lived and remained single.

Wife No. 2, Helen Maginnis, beautiful Follies star, came along in 1922 and departed in 1925, $100,000 richer. Thorne waited a year before he led Ann Alston Clore to the altar. She divorced him last November, winning $30,000 alimony, payable in $2,000 installments. Both she and the ex-Follies girl have since remarried. Seven months ago Thorne again became a husband, this time to Mrs. Marian Bolin, and their marriage is apparently permanent.

Every now and then Ex-Wife No. 1 and Ex-Wife No. 3 hail Thorne into court for an alimony accounting. Recently his mother took steps to protect his $2,000,000 trust fund against inroads of alimony. Oh, well, it probably could be worse. Ex-wives in Cook County and Chicago are entitled to only 33 1/3 per cent of a man's income.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS GAINS; CONFIDENCE BEING RESTORED

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Returning confidence in security values and the definite waning of the hysteria which has held a large portion of the country's investors in its grip for a week or more was plainly evident in the first hour of trading today.

SNOOK APPEAL TO BE HEARD WEDNESDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—A hearing relative to the appeal of Dr. James Howard Snook, 49, ex-Ohio State University professor, from his sentence to death in the electric chair, November 29, will be held in the Franklin County appellate court here this afternoon.

It will be decided whether the motion of his attorneys, which requests permission to file an appeal to the court of appeals, will be granted. According to law, an appeal from a death-sentence conviction must be filed within thirty days after the conviction itself. The lawyers of the lawyer of Thorne Hix allowed this time to elapse without taking any legal action.

Transactions in the first half-hour were close to 2,000,000 shares, an unusually heavy total, but 40 per cent less than in the same period yesterday. Sharp advances recorded in transactions of a few hundred shares showed that stocks were not plentiful at the price appearing on the tape.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

POWER FROM CONQUEST—And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee; and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about. And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.—Luke 4:14, 15.

THE CHECKERED GAME OF LIFE

It isn't as bad a world as the first pages sometimes indicate.

It isn't as bad even as some of the stories told on the screens.

Nor is it as bad as is indicated by the novels of society or by the detective and mystery tales.

All these portray at times the abnormal things of life, the perversions and inversions of humanity. They are no more normal today than they were when set down by Shakespeare, by Milere, by Dumas, Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, Galsworthy, Conan Doyle, Sherwood Anderson, Dreiser. All these writers told of the wicked side of life, of the villains, of outraged virtue, of vicious scheming to overthrow law, decency, honor and kindness.

Too often there seems to be no plot for a day in men and women who pursue the beaten path of virtue. Too often the writer makes use of abnormality, of irregularity, of immorality, of sex laxities, of cheating and lying and murder. All the world loves a lover or a hero, but doesn't care to read much about such persons unless they do something very much out of the ordinary. The common, garden varieties of lover and hero are on every hand, but they don't break into the newspapers, the stage laws of God and man.

The persistent tendency of people is to draw conclusions without sufficient premises, to reason from an individual case to generalities. A witty Frenchman said, "All generalizations are wrong including this one." This is a good thing to remember when tempted to pessimism by the reports of vice and crime and scandal presented by the press, movies and books. Read your newspapers for the worth while things offered by it; there are decent plays and there are wholesome books and magazines; there is good music, uplifting art, both in pictures and literature. One cannot avoid knowing something of the seamy side of life, but after all it is not the side that is intended to be seen, whether of a garment or of a life. If one is interested in the submerged part of humanity, in the men and women of the slums, in the crooks both in high and low society, let him look upon them as phenomena of nature, as specimens to be examined by sociologists, criminologists and psychologists. They are not typical of human kind.

'Twasn't Fair to Ask Them

Somebody who couldn't have had much of importance on his mind recently sent out a questionnaire to the Princeton freshmen asking them to designate the most essential quality in the ideal girl." All except 65 of the 490 youngsters approached were "easy and tried to reply. Naturally their limited experiences with life prevented them from concocting any real answers. For the essential quality in an ideal girl, as any individual of the male sex views her, is an ability to make that particular male individual fall, and fall hard, and like it, no matter how badly it hurts. Naturally the average freshman would never suspect anything like that, and least of all a freshman of the "sophisticated" type.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Cantor, the local pride of hereabout, mounted the hustings in Longacre Square a night or two ago to hurl verbiage intended to aid the candidacy of his friend, Jimmy Walker.

"I don't know anything about politics," quoth the Inimitable Edward, "but at odd moments in my life I have delved into the constitution of the United States and all documents, and in none of these have I been able to find any prohibition whereby the mayor of the city of New York is deprived of his inalienable right to wisecrack and wear creased trousers."

Eddie may know nothing of politics. But he sh^ou^d know his Longacre Square, Yassam!

GERSHWIN'S CAREER

George Gershwin, composer of "Rhapsody in Blue," began life as the son of poor Jewish parents in the not-so-artistic surroundings of Grand Street, where, to use his own phrase, he was "the toughest kid on the block." At 17 he threw up a promising career as book-keeper and stalked off to Broadway. His first job there was song-plugger, at $15 a week and experience. Not satisfied with banging out other people's tunes he wrote music for himself in his spare time. At 25 he was the unquestioned king of Tin Pan Alley and without relinquishing that crown has since become the darling of even the musical intellectuals. Now, at 31, he has turned his back on

Mazda Lane to write a full-length grand opera, based on "The Dybbuk," at the request of Otto Kahn, chairman of the Metropolitan Board.

TRUE ENOUGH, BROTHER!

Mack was "moaning low" to Moran about his bad luck picking winners at the race track.

"How come you always lose at the races and always win when you play cards?" queried the logical-minded Moran.

"Dawg-gone, boy," replied The Other Black Crow, "that's simple. I don't shuffle 'em horses!"

NOW BE GOOD, CHRIS!

Chris Morley whose audiences at his Hoboken theatre have been encouraged to add to their own entertainment by cheering the heroes and throwing peanuts at the cads of the revived mid-Victorian melodramas, is coming in for a lot of criticism from play folk who feel that the Litry Lad, turned showman, isn't "playing the game." Jane Cowd, the actress, took a fling at him the other day.

"Morley's project," says Jane, "though it may have started in fun, is an incubator for bad manners in the theatre. What New York audiences need is encouragement to behave themselves. Even the fashionable theatre party, coming in during the second act, can be shamed out of existence with enough criticism and comment from intelligent theatregoers."

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHAT THEN?

A hundred years from now somebody in Fitchburg, Mass., will open a vault near the World war memorial and will take out some letters. The letters, written by President Hoover, Governor Allen, and other men in public life, have just been buried—to be taken up in the year 2029.

This will be very interesting to readers in 2029, but perhaps not important or valuable. Nobody can write much today and be sure it will have any point a hundred years hence. The world moves too fast for that. Problems come and go. Ideas and conditions change. In fact, the hope of civilization lies in a changing world, not a static world.

RETIRING

Geraldine Farrar, noted opera star, tells the world she will retire when she is 50. She has less than three years to go. Retirement is fine, if you know when. Nobody should retire to be idle. When retirement means devoting your best energies to doing something you particularly want to do, and which it is not possible for you to do in your routine job, then retirement ought to come as soon as you can arrange it. Probably Miss Farrar is unwise, as anybody else would be, to announce a definite date of retirement. Who knows now whether the best time will be at 50 or 60 or 70—or ever?

FADS THAT FADE

A headline tells us that "stockingless fad fades as teachers ignore style."

Teachers who ignore styles are wise. Giving undue attention to the trivialities of style and dress and fads in school gives them an importance which they do not deserve. Fads become issues. The whole town can easily become stirred up. Ignoring a fad is the best way to kill it.

SENSIBLE

An English woman, traveling on a fast train, pulled the emergency cord and stopped the train. She explained she wanted to stop and have a cup of tea. Sounds silly. So railroad officials thought. The poor lady doubtless will have to pay a fine. At least, she gets a fine reprimand. Yet she did what most of us would like to do, and what we all ought to do. Why not stop and have a cup of tea? We take the fastest possible train to save a half hour which we do not know how to use after we have saved it.

AMENDMENTS STRENGTHENING ALIEN DEPORTATION LAWS URGED

By WILLIAM P. HOLADAY

Congressman from Illinois

William P. Holaday was born at Ridgefarm, Ill., Dec. 14, 1882. He attended the University of Missouri and the University of Illinois. In 1905 he began his law practice at Danville, Ill. From 1909 to 1923 he was a member of the Illinois house of representatives. He was elected to congress in 1923 from the eighteenth Illinois district, and has been returned each term since. He is a Republican.

I think congress could strengthen the laws now on the statute books relating to undesirable aliens and enforcement of their deportation.

Just what amendments may be offered I cannot say at this time. It remains for the future to determine in the light of the latest data available in the hands of the department of labor.

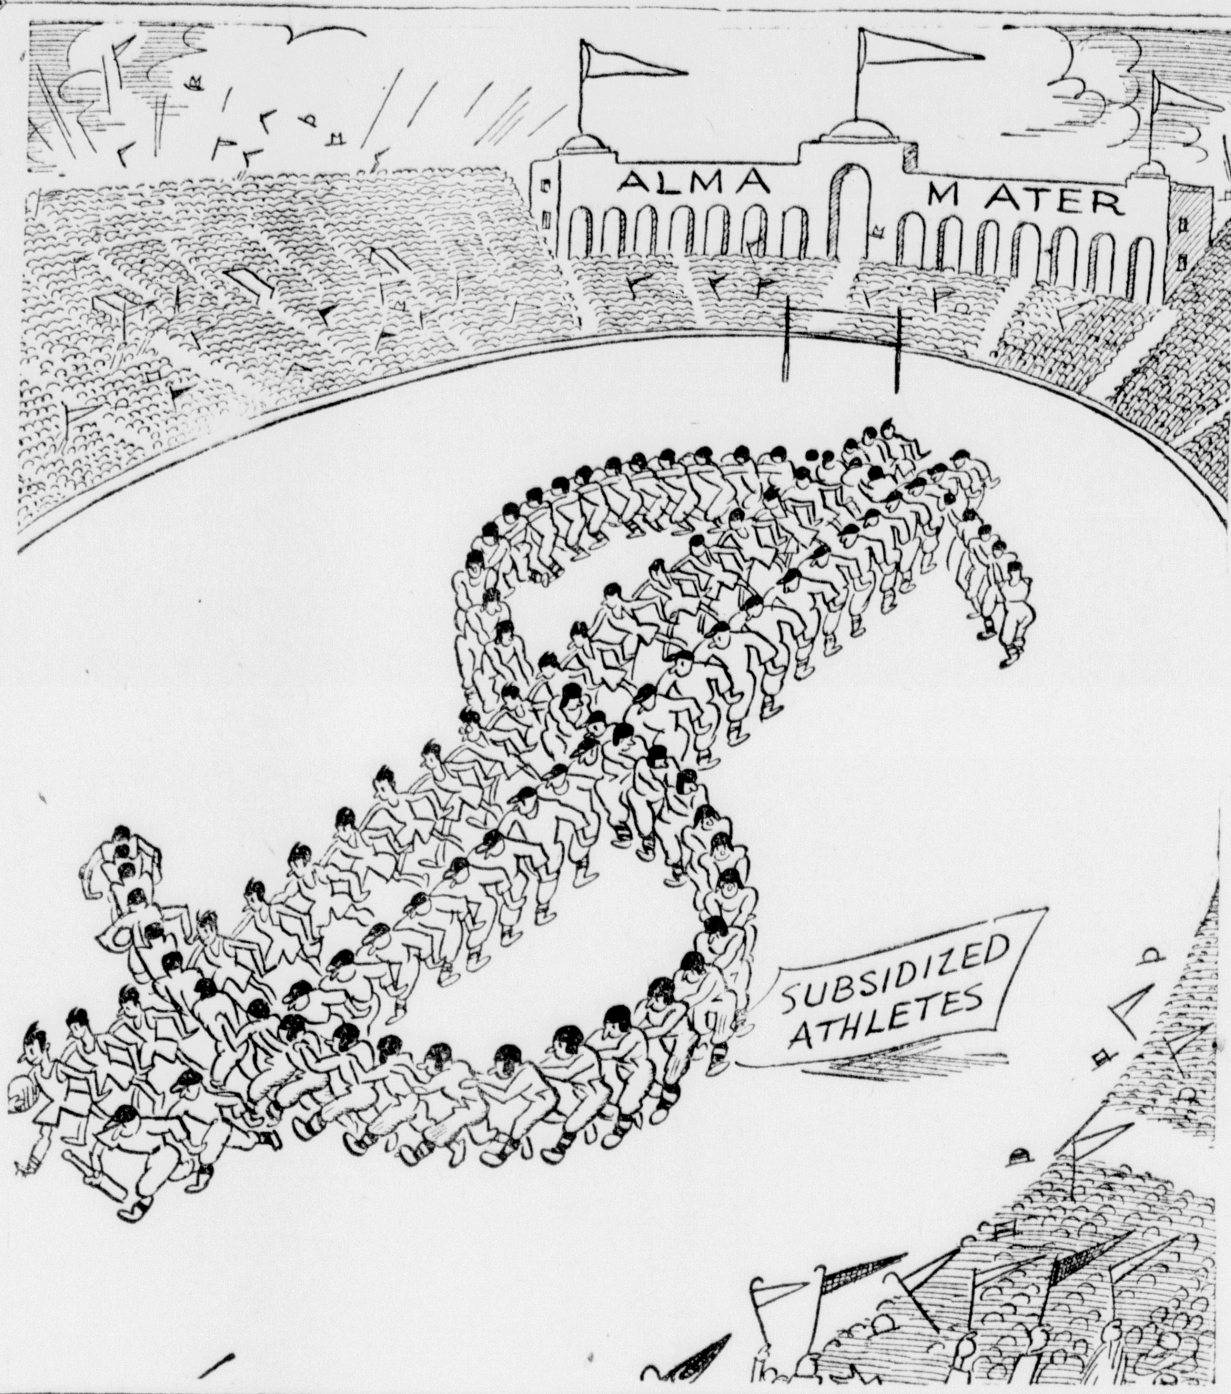

It always has been impossible to determine the real number of deportable aliens in the United States. I have never personally had any idea that there are as many as some have estimated. The estimates of those deportable for one reason or another under the present law run as high as 4,000,000. I doubt if there are that many properly coming under the category of deportable undesirable aliens.

I firmly believe that provisions of existing law not only have permitted the states to rid themselves of alien criminals who would have been public charges and a burden on the states, but that the law has proven a strong influence for the good on aliens generally. I believe the existing law has proven a deterrent to crime. I have heard of some particular cases of aliens who possible have been violating a law but who have announced that they have reformed and intend to be law-abiding citizens because of the fear of being deported from the United States.

I am convinced that the restrictive immigration law of July 1, 1924, a permanent statute, is as important as any law that congress has enacted for many years. It has kept out the excess of foreign labor and has been a good send to American labor. I am studying the operations of this permanent restrictive immigration act.

I expect to make a speech in the house, either in the last part of this session or early in the regular session, dealing with the way in which this law has worked out during these five years. I am going over the records of the administration of the law and other data in this connection to ascertain the real measure of its success.

THE SNAKE DANCE

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I have purposefully begun with this strenuous system, because many women who have not exercised for a long time find it unwise to go back to exercise via too vigorous a route. The system is also good for the woman of delicate health who cannot indulge in the more violent forms of calisthenics, but we still want some means of stretching her limbs.

The whole system is built around the principle of expansion and contraction, and the laws of specific gravity and equilibrium. You can stand perfectly still, with your arms outstretched, contracting your back. You then draw your shoulders in from the arm sockets and expand. All motion must begin from the source, or joints. For instance, if you want to do arm circling to straighten your back and to give you an erect carriage, you must stretch out your arms for arm circling. You move the upper arm at the socket in your shoulder, paying no attention to the actual movements of your hands, but permitting the motion of the shoulders to move your entire arms. In the same manner the hips are exercised by moving the upper body in a rotary movement at the hip joints. The legs and thighs are made limber by a swinging and rotary movement of the entire limb from the hip joint. The women who take this course are taught to exercise their abdominal muscles independently. This is a difficult exercise and requires expert teaching.

However, from this school there emanate some of the less rigorous exercises which every woman can do in her own home. Just going through the elementary movements of pulling a rope or of imitating the movements of a cat stretching can do much to take the kinks out of an inactive body.

The important factor in doing these comparatively simple exercises is regularity, for it is only after a certain amount of time has elapsed that they are truly beneficial. This is one of the very new schools of body building.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—"Cherchez la femme" is the French sleuth's motto whenever a crime puzzles him. "Hunt for the woman."

"Look for the official connection" is the rule in Washington. It is a rule which makes detective work particularly thrilling in the District of Columbia. The Capitol hawkshaw never knows into how extraordinary a sensation his investigation of the most ordinary-looking case may lead him.

For example, who would have supposed that the recent death, under rather mysterious circumstances, of 22 or 23-year-old Virginia McPherson, a little trained nurse of not the slightest social consequence, would have set the whole machinery of the justice department in motion caused an upheaval in the police department and started a senatorial inquiry which promises an indefinite number of a ramifications and may extend half a dozen years into past history?

It did—with questions of murder, suicide, liquor, narcotics, oil, heaven knows what to be probed—

Virginia McPherson was the wife of Robert A. McPherson, Jr., a young bank clerk.

The couple had separated and decided to part forever—not on violently bad terms; more incompatibility. Young McPherson visited his wife's apartment one evening in mid-September to discuss a final settlement between them; left rather late, with their conversation not quite completed; called in the morning to finish it, and found Virginia dead on the floor, strangled with her own pajama cord.

"Evidently a suicide," was the police verdict.

Maybe it was a suicide, to be sure. Nevertheless, many folk were suspicious. Among them was Senator Lee S. Overman, representing Virginia's home state of North Carolina.

Perhaps of its own initiative, perhaps spurred to unusual activity by Senator Overman's protests, the Grand jury went deeply into the case. The police stood by their suicide theory. The district attorney's office upheld them.

For all that, the grand jury indicted Robert McPherson, with a "charge" denunciation of the police investigators' attitude.

to the accumulation of complaints relative to the Washington authorities administration.

The narcotic trade is rampant in the city, he asserted on the senate floor—and responsible, he surmised, for several unpunished murders.

Naturally his accusation instantly raised the query:

"Could the McPherson case have had a drug angle?"

"A nurse! Possibly brought into professional contact with narcotic addicts or peddlers! Had she learned enough, by any chance, to be dangerous?"

The guess, anyhow, is being taken into account in the investigation.

It was Senator Pleas's resolution which launched the inquiry.

As previously observed, he is a great criminal lawyer. With Senator Sackett on the bench, so to speak, and their fellow senatorial committee members sitting around as a jury, Pleas will do the probing.

He is not after the police so much, he tells us—he is particularly after the "higher ups" who have managed the department these last few years.

Menu Hint

Veal and Ham Pie

Waldorf Salad

New England Pandowdy

Coffee

Who doesn't like a meat pie? Try this old-fashioned recipe and see if the family—and friends, if you happen to have guests—won't cheer.

Today's Recipes

Veal and Ham Pie—One pound lean veal, one cup ham, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, one teaspoon chopped parsley, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two and one-half cups water, two tablespoons butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour, two hard cooked eggs, pastry. Cut the veal and ham into small pieces and add to them the parsley, lemon rind, salt, pepper and water. Simmer very slowly for an hour, or until the meat is tender. Thicken with the butter and flour rubbed smoothly together, and fill a baking dish with the meat and gravy. Add the eggs, sliced, and cover with good short biscuit crust. Bake for 20 minutes at a moderate oven, or until the crust is baked through.

New England Pandowdy—Two cups tart apples, pared and cored, one cup sugar, two teaspoons water, nutmeg or cinnamon, baking powder crust. Fill a greased baking dish full of the apples, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon or nutmeg, add the water and cover with a biscuit crust. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit), until the short cake is thoroughly baked and the fruit tender, about 25 minutes.

CHOWDER IS A WHOLE MEAL

Vegetable Chowder

Two medium onions, one stalk celery, one sprig parsley, two carrots, two potatoes, two tomatoes, one cup corn, two quarts meat stock, salt, pepper, one-eighth teaspoon celery salt, three slices salt pork bacon, dried, four milk or soda crackers, rolled, one-fourth cup butter or salt pork fat. Melt butter or try out salt pork, and cook vegetables, except potatoes, in this, over a low fire, five minutes. Add stock, cook slowly ten minutes. Add potatoes and cook until tender. Season to taste and serve.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Answers to Mothers

God could not be everywhere therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverb.

"Dear Doctor: Our four-year-old daughter has two teeth (the front incisors) that are beginning to show decay, but the dentist would not fix them because he said they would soon come out and it didn't pay to fill them. What do you advise?"

MRS. S.

I think you have gone to a dentist who is not keeping up with the advances in medicine and dentistry, Mrs. S. The idea that because the first teeth will soon fall out, they needn't have any attention, was found to be wrong years ago.

There are several reasons why the first teeth DO need attention.

1. If the first teeth are decayed, they usually are painful and prevent the child from chewing his food. This may cause nutritional upsets.

2. These decayed teeth are full of pus germs, which may be transmitted by the blood stream and settle on the heart valves and joints, etc., causing serious trouble.

3. The permanent teeth, being directly under the first teeth, may become infected and decay almost as soon as they appear.

4. Unless the first teeth are filled and cared for, they may be so painful that they either have to be extracted by a dentist, or the child works on them himself until they are loose enough to pull out. (Can't you remember how we used to spend time se-sawing the loose tooth back and forth?) This premature loss of teeth may cause the permanent teeth to come in irregularly, so the child has crooked teeth, and it also may cause the jaws to develop improperly.

5. If the child is taken regularly to the dentist, at least once in six months, beginning cavities can be filled when they are tiny, without any pain.

6. The habits that the child acquires in caring for his first teeth are going to be carried on with his permanent teeth, and through life in fact. Going to the dentist will make him realize, more than anything else, the importance of his teeth, and therefore the need of the proper cleansing and the proper elements. The diet that makes for good teeth is also the diet for the best growth and development of the other organs of the body.

I'll add here that this diet includes three to four glasses of milk for lime and phosphorus and complete protein; two ounces or so more protein food (building and repair)—eggs, flesh food, cheese—whose grain cereals and breads, raw fruits and vegetables (for vitamins, mineral elements and bulk), and some cooked vegetables as well. The hard crusts of the bread and the raw fruits and vegetables will also exercise for the jaws and teeth, which is a large factor in the development of the jaws.

Now you can anticipate from what I have written what I'll advise, Mrs. S. It is to take your little girl to a dentist who keeps up in his profession.

We have a list of books on the general care and feeding of children, which you will find helpful. See column rules for obtaining this.

Mrs. T.—Your questions on the Menopause (change of life) are answered in our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A burnt child dreads the fire, they say. If that's the case, wouldn't you think one who had been scorched by the heat of an unhappy marriage would be doubly cautious of getting burnt again in the same way?

It does not always follow, however according to the following letter.

"My Dear Virginia Lee: I want to thank you for giving me an answer to my other letter and now I want some more advice."

"I am 22 and go with a fellow one year older. He gave me an engagement ring just a week ago. Of course I know a fellow has more claim on a girl than I, but I should be glad to go places and would rather do nothing but sit at home."

"I feel that we should have our good times now and be ready to settle down. He thinks we should save every penny now, and then in the future have a good time."

"Virginia, I have been married once and I know how cruel life can be if you can't have your good times before you are married. We went to a dance the other night and he got terribly sulky and was peevish at me the rest of the evening. Please advise me."

"GOLDBLOCKS"

Your letter was too long for all of it to be printed, Goldlocks, so I just put in the most important parts. I can't see that you did anything at all to make the young man sulky and angry, and I don't believe that you can expect much happiness through a marriage with him.

As you have had one unhappy experience you should be doubly careful of another matrimonial venture. I believe in having good times both before and after marriage, but of course young people are more apt to be tied down after marriage, so it is usually wise to have a lot of fun while you're free, if you can have it without spending too much money.

Of course, an engaged couple wants to save as much as possible towards home expenses. I think, if I were you, I would be in no hurry to marry this young man. Be sure he is not going to sulk and be peevish at every little thing after you are married. Better a little suffering now in giving him up, than marry him and be unhappy.

WONDERING BROWN EYED PEGGY

Ask the boy friend to the party if you like, Peggy. If he doesn't come to see you any more himself, surely he has no right to expect to hold you to your promise not to go with other fellows. If he doesn't come to the party and act as if he cared, go with others and do your best to forget him dear.

BROWN EYED SALLY: Let there some way you can prove to your parents that the thing they heard about your boy friend is untrue. They must be absolutely convinced that he is guilty, or they would not forbid you to have anything more to do with him. Try to think of some way you can vindicate your friend and then your parents will have to live in and let you see him.

EUGENE: It looks as if the little girl was not ready to be anybody's sweetheart, doesn't it? Why be angry with her for that? She would probably count you as her BEST friend. I think you should make up to her and be good friends as long as possible. Later, as you go to college or to work your lives apart, not be close together, so why spoil good times by being cross and not speaking?

BROKEN HEARTED SUSIE

What becomes of the wife in case you and her husband go off together and you take care of the children? Does she lose her husband, home and children? Maybe life would not mean a great deal to her in that case. You can hardly blame her for not wanting to divorce him and giving up the children or in caring for them herself all alone, can you?

Can you imagine yourself giving your husband up under the circumstances? I say, very emphatically, no matter what it costs you, you should keep him out of your life and encourage him to be true to his wife and family.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I'm a sophomore in college and in love with a boy and he is in love with me. I like to go out to dances with other boys, but he objects. My mother will not allow me to go steady. We have quarreled about this and I'm afraid I'm losing his love. Please help me."

"WEARY CO-ED"

If you love him so, dear, why do you wish to hurt his feelings by going to dances with other boys? And why doesn't your mother want you to go steady with your boy friend? Is she afraid you will want to marry before your education is finished?

If his love means more to you than anything else you will give up your other friends, but I do not know if that would be very wise, unless you overcome your mother's objections and contemplate marriage in the future.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BURIED ALIVE

"What under the sun is the Order of the Sacred Beetle?" asked Peter. "It sounds interesting. What will I have to do to belong? And would a boy be welcome?" But Lady-Bug had no chance to answer, for at this moment a shrill voice screamed:

"Rose, Rose, come here quick! I have fallen into the tree and I can't get out!"

Rose Beetle proved a regular Johnny-on-the-spot. Dashing madly through the crowd and upsetting a small beetle or two in his hurry, he ran towards his fellow creature in distress, tumbling headlong over a pebble that lay in his path. By the time he had picked himself up the cries had grown weaker, but Rose knew exactly where they had come from. Without a moment's hesitation he crawled straight to the trunk of an old tree.

"Dear me, I am afraid Rose can't get her out in time," moaned Lady-

Bug, close at Rose's heels, but Grass-Green reproved her.

Him. Only let us keep out of each other's way. Everybody! Stop your pushing."

body! Stop your pushing."

"I wonder how deep she has fallen in?" questioned the Beetles of each other. And Stag added:

"Yes, and how much wood has fallen on top of her?"

"Do tell me what the matter is?" asked puzzled Peter. And Stag answered:

"Poor Mrs. Rose Beetle has tumbled into the tree trunk and gotten buried under the bark, and unless we can dig her out she'll never play in this garden any more. Keep close behind me if you want to watch me help my chum pull his wife out of the mess."

Stagg Beetle set to work and dug up the earth in a spot at the foot of the tree, scattering the dirt in clouds that made Peter sneeze and would have buried him if he had not sidestepped.

DECISIVE VICTORY OVER NEBRASKAN IS CAPTURED BY CHAMP

Only Courage Keeps Challenger On Feet At Finish

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, held his title today after successfully defending it last night by decisively thrashing Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, in all but one of the ten rounds.

The challenger was beaten at every angle and only his courage kept him on his feet at the finish. His nose was askew, one eye closed, blood pouring from nose and mouth and lips swollen, Hudkins kept plugging into the final second.

"Come on and fight! Walker!" he would murmur through the swollen bleeding lips. And again he would say: "Is that your hardest punch, Walker?"

Jack Kennedy, referee, said Hudkins had one round, the eighth, three were even and Walker had the other six.

It was in the seventh round that two hard right-hand punches to Walker's chin had the champion staggering, but like the champion that he is, Mickey cut loose in desperation, having Hudkins on the wing at the going.

From almost every angle Walker proved himself the master boxer, the more adroit ringman, the craftier general and handled himself beautifully in the face of a rugged attack.

For once the prophets ran true to form in almost everything they had predicted. There was not a leading minute in the entire thirty. Hudkins fought as he always fights, as he always will fight, because he knows no other style—take them keep coming and maybe catch the bird on the wing. Walker was cool and collected throughout against Hudkins' rushing, mauling wrestling tactics, he showed the defense of a champion.

Walker absolutely nullified Hudkins most potent asset—the kidney punch—because he kept his elbows working over time and when the proper moment arrived he would shove Hudkins away and bring into existence his snappy right uppercut that had Hudkins befuddled and battered from the second round on.

Walker showed the result of splendid conditioning with his coolness, pluckitude of mind and speed.

He was on his toes always. His defensive skill was never called in to stronger play because probably he never needed it more than against this unorthodox mauler who lives to bore in and jolt with short jerky body punches, mixed with swings for the kidneys. Walker proved up, but in defeat you had to love the tussled Hudkins.

BUCKLEY EXPECTED TO BEGIN SENTENCE AT ATLANTA FRIDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—Bert B. Buckley, 55, ex-state treasurer, who was sentenced to serve two years and six months in the Atlanta penitentiary after his conviction on charges of attempted bribery and conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, will probably start doing his "stretch" in the federal prison sometime Friday.

According to United States Marshal Stanley Borthwick, Buckley will surrender himself to the official tomorrow afternoon in Cincinnati. Borthwick said that Buckley and approximately twenty-five other prisoners would be taken to the southern penal institution on the train which leaves Cincinnati tomorrow night at 8:40 o'clock.

The "prison train" will arrive in Atlanta sometime Friday morning and then Buckley, once the treasurer of the Buckeye state, will be "mugged" and "finger-printed" and incarcerated in the bastille which will be his home for two and one-half years.

This marks the climax of the career of the former highly-respected state official. At his trial in Columbus, he was convicted by a jury of twelve men for his alleged connection with the then famous Cincinnati "beer-brewery-bribery" scandal.

It was alleged that Buckley attempted to bribe John F. Eckhart, then acting prohibition commissioner of Ohio and Indiana, Eckhart or of Ohio and Indiana.

DESPERATE BUCCANEERS ARE HOPING TO BEAT GREENVILLE

By PHIL FRAME

INDICATIONS are that a revamped and possibly a rejuvenated Xenia Central High School football team will take the field Friday afternoon in the third Miami Valley League game against Greenville High at Cox Athletic Field.

The Bucs are a desperate and a determined lot this week and if a victory over Greenville is not forthcoming it will not be because the team did not try its utmost to win. The squad was cheered to a great extent by the return of Kinsey to practice this week. Kinsey, one of the best linemen available this season, has been suffering from a shoulder injury but may return to the starting lineup Friday, or at least break into the contest at some time or other.

Coach "Pinky" Wilson is understood to be considering a few changes in the lineup designed to bolster up the line without weakening the backfield. It is possible that Joe Smittle may be transferred from fullback to center, a position he has been accustomed to playing for several years, and Howard Thompson shifted from end to the backfield. Thompson, one of the mid-season "finds" at Central, looked good as a back one night in practice this week and such a change might be all to the advantage of the Bucs as Smittle would strengthen the line considerably.

Followers of the Buccaneer eleven are convinced that most of the bad football in the squad has been lost for good and that succeeding games will witness nothing but improvement all along the line.

Yearly competition in football is gradually building up a friendly rivalry between Xenia and Greenville and observers are of the opinion that a victory over the invaders Friday seems probable providing the team can restore to itself a measure of lost confidence.

The fact that Xenia has lost four straight games by emphatic scores should not be held against the Bucs. Every school with a small enrollment has a poor football season every so often and Xenia was especially hard hit this fall with graduation sadly depleting the ranks of experienced players.

With only two letter men back around which to build a team, Coach Wilson faced and is still facing one of the most difficult assignments a Xenia Central mentor ever had. It is hard to recall a similar season in recent years that the material has been lacking to such a degree.

Under these circumstances the Bucs are doing as well as could be expected and with the players gaining new experience every week it is entirely likely that future games this season will find Xenia a vastly improved team in all departments.

Friday's contest will start at 3 o'clock. The officials are: Harry Cutler, referee; A. E. Sauer, umpire, and Moler, head linesman. Both Xenia and Greenville have lost two league games this season and their game this week will provide each school with an opportunity to hang up a league victory for the first time. A tie game would be unsatisfactory to both teams. However, for the last two seasons Greenville and Xenia have fought to a draw.

BUCCANEER SECOND TEAM WILL TACKLE HOME SECONDS HERE

Xenia Central High School's "Little Buccaneers," a squad of eighth grade and freshmen football candidates, who have been practicing industriously for the last ten days under Assistant Coach Glen Patterson absorbing all the knowledge they can of the rudiments of the game, will have their first opportunity to demonstrate in practice Thursday afternoon what they have learned in theory.

A practice game has been arranged for the yearlings with the reserve team of the O. S. and S. O. Home on the Home Gridiron late Thursday afternoon. The game will start about 4:30 o'clock or a little earlier if possible.

The squad includes about twenty players and a number of the candidates have shown exceptional ability in work-outs which have been in progress for ten days. Patterson has been assisted in the last few days by John Gibney, former Xenia Central star athlete, who recently returned home from Cleveland after recovering from a severe illness.

One week from Thursday the Xenia seconds will play a game with the combined eighth grade and freshmen of Oakwood High School at Dayton. A return game with the O. S. and S. O. Home reserves will also be played later in the season.

The probable starting lineup for the "Little Bucs" in Friday's game includes M. Hyman and Foley at ends, Blaney and Luttrell at tackles, Harner and Storer at guards, Smith at center, Adair at quarter, Dalton and Stiles at halves and Baker, acting captain and fullback. Others who will probably break into the game are Flite at end, Acton at tackle and T. Huston at halfback.

Organization of an eighth and ninth grade football team at Xenia Central is designed to give the boys a chance to learn the fundamentals of the game so that when and if they become candidates for the high school team in later years they will not be entirely inexperienced. A large number of other schools have adopted the idea and it has been proven that better high school teams are usually produced.

YOUTH HELD HERE WANTED IN FLORIDA

Virgil Jenkins, 20, prisoner in the County Jail, who was recently bound over to the grand jury on a charge of burglary and larceny, is wanted at Vero Beach, Fla., for highway robbery, according to a telegram received by police from Sheriff C. S. Rice of the Southern city. No particulars of the case were given, however, and police expect to question Jenkins in the hope of learning details.

Jenkins confessed to being implicated with two other youths in an attempt to steal a 400-pound safe containing $200 from the "Baseball Smokery," 11½ E. Main St., a week ago.

has anti-knock Qualities

To get the utmost in service from your modern high speed, high compression motor, your oil as well as your gasoline should be anti-knock.

Koolmotor Oil is a real anti-knock motor oil because it reduces carbon formation to an absolute minimum.

Excessive carbon—one of the chief causes of engine knocks—is removed from Koolmotor Oil at the refinery through exclusive Cities Service super-refining methods.

Koolmotor Oil is pure Pennsylvania oil without mixture with any other oils. When you fill your crankcase with Koolmotor Oil, you automatically flush out the cause of knocking.

Cascara—the Perfect Laxative

Now, when the end of the day finds you feeling out of sorts; and the most tempting foods hold no enjoyment, just chew a candy tablet before bed-time. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

You'll awake with that coating gone from your tongue. "Breath will be sweetened; eyes brightened; you'll feel like doing things right, instead of just getting by."

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, headachy, constipated condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion and assimilation. You sleep right on while Cascarets are preparing your system for a thorough cleansing in the morning. Never a bit of sickening or discomfort when Cascarets are used.

Cascarets are a pure vegetable product, made from Cascara Sagrada, a substance which authorities above doubting, say actually strengthens the bowel muscles. That's why you can take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. Every action of Cascarets is helpful. They are a blessing to old folks!

Full medical endorsement proves their principle is right; 20 million packages used a year shows how people like them!

MANY BARGAINS IN STOCKS SAYS RASKOB

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—"My friends and I are all buying stocks. The list is now filled with bargains."

John J. Raskob, political and industrial leader, made this assertion today.

"Nearly all the standard railroad stocks are cheap," he added.

He expressed the opinion that the recent decline will have only a temporary effect on general business conditions.

Raskob declared that prudent investors are now buying stocks in huge quantities and that they "will profit handsomely when this hysteria is over."

ARRESTED HERE FOR MANSFIELD POLICE

Fred J. Martin, 21, colored, taxi driver, arrested by police Tuesday night, is being held at Police Headquarters pending the arrival of authorities from Mansfield, O., where he will be returned to face prosecution on an affidavit charging him with passing a worthless check for $5 last October 5. Police received a warrant for his arrest and officers are expected to arrive in Xenia to return the suspect to Mansfield Thursday. Martin, police say, operates a taxi between Xenia and Wilberforce.

BRYAN, O. MAYOR DIES

BRYAN, O., Oct. 30.—A nervous breakdown, which was believed to have been superinduced by the death of his wife in an automobile accident this spring, today had caused the death of one of Bryan's most prominent citizens, Mayor O. H. Wiley.

AUTOMATIC DEVICE PROMISES "FOOL-PROOF" FLYING

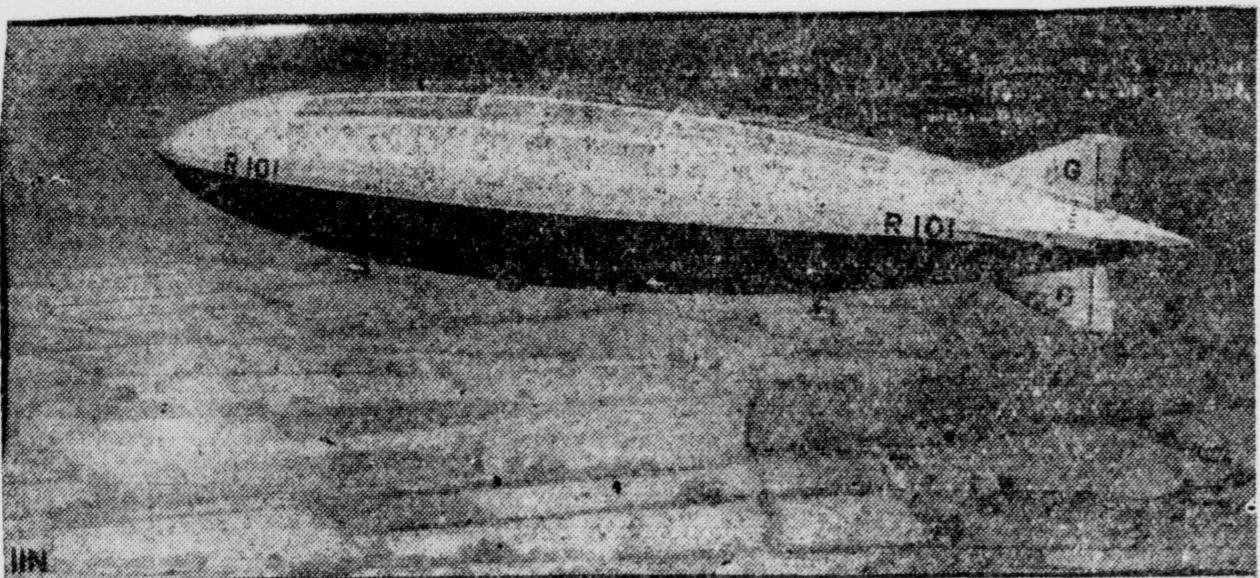

"Fool proof" flying is at last believed to have been achieved by Dr. C. H. Vance, of Pomona, Cal., following successful test flights of his newly perfected automatic stabilizers at Los Angeles. The device, shown here being inspected by Dr. Vance after the flight, consists of two automatic controls, one for lateral stability to prevent skidding, side-slipping and falling off on one wing, and the other for fore-and-aft stability, to keep the ship in level flight without attention on the part of the pilot.

Noted Flier Takes Wife on Tour

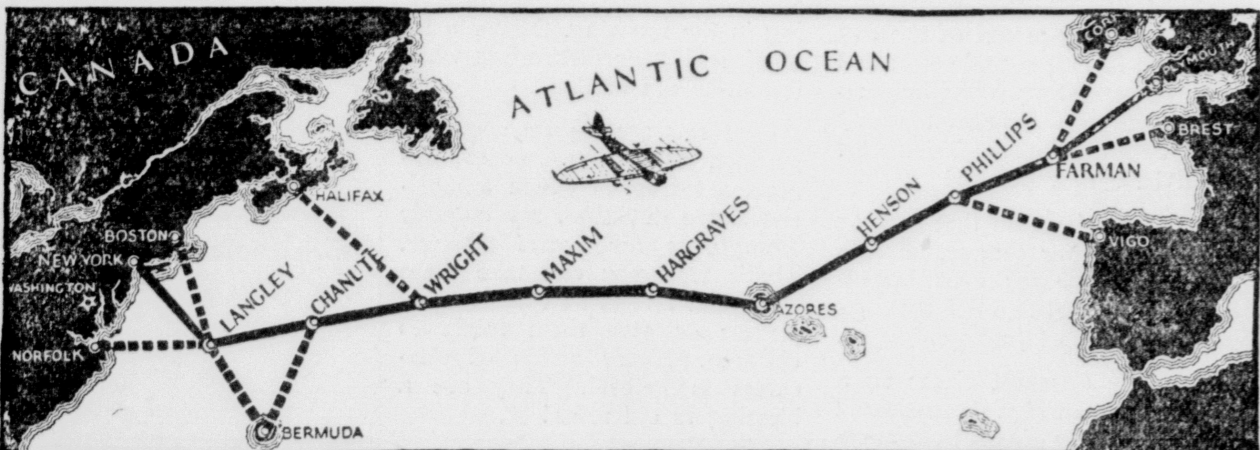

Colonel Clarence Chamberlin, with Mrs. Chamberlin, photographed just as they left Newark, N. J., Airport for a hop along the New Jersey coast. Mrs. Chamberlin is an enthusiastic student of aviation and is learning to handle the "stick" under her husband's tuition.

England's Queen of the Sky Visits London

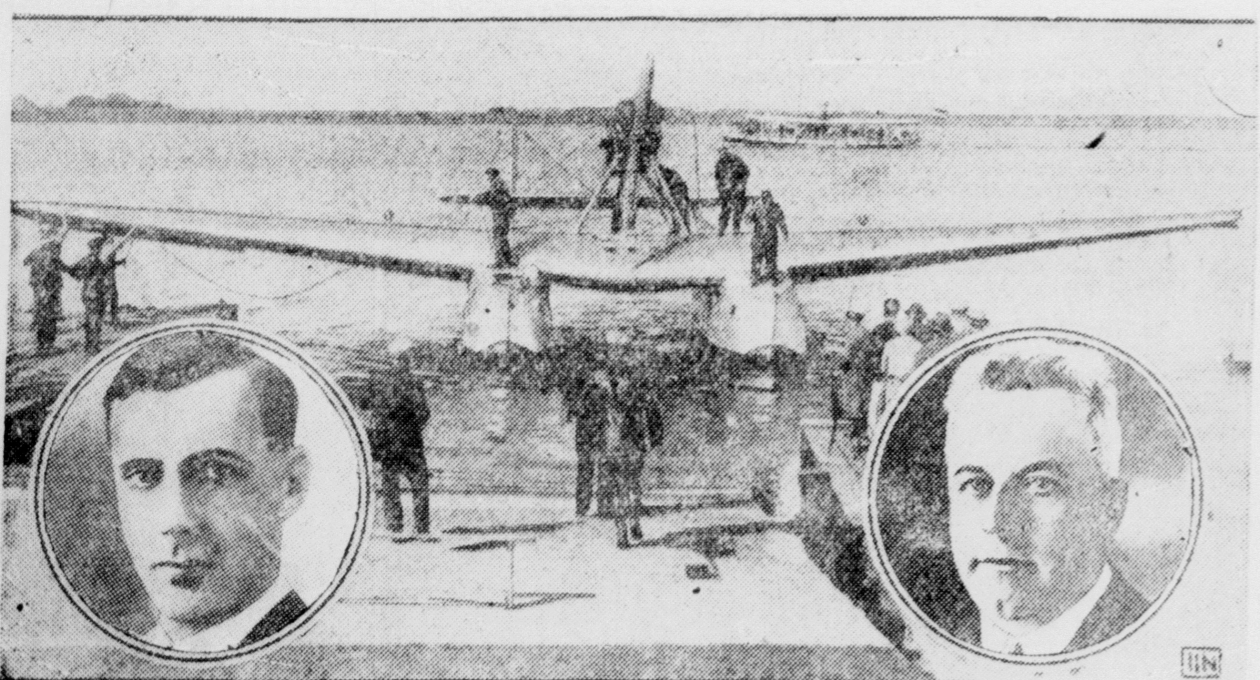

Remarkable photograph of the R-101, England's new air monarch, as it floats majestically above the city of London during recent trial flight from Cardington airfield. The dirigible which is the largest in the world and has a passenger carrying capacity of one hundred persons, will attempt a trans-Atlantic hop to the United States as soon as its crew grows familiar with the workings of the giant craft.

Where Proposed Seadromes Will Be Located

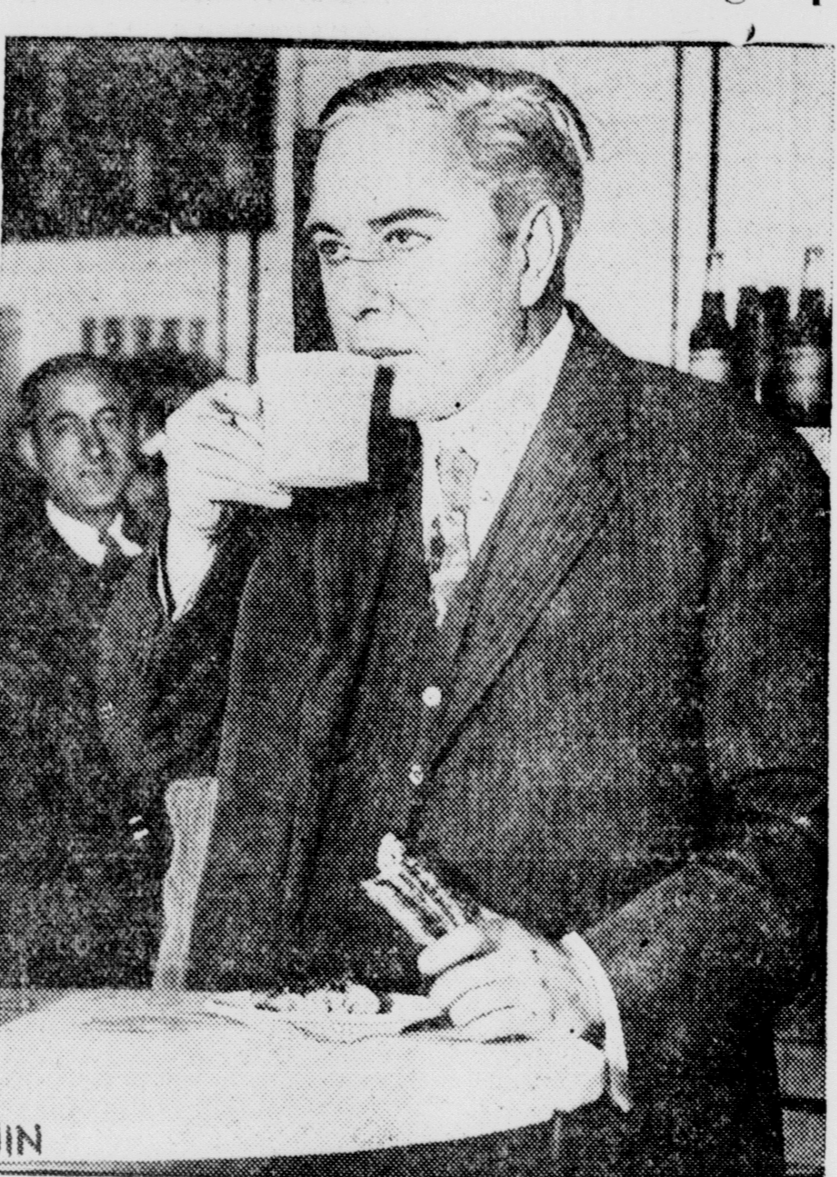

Providing the model seadrome, now being tested off Cambridge, Md., proves able to withstand the pounding of the seas, eight large seadromes will be installed across the Atlantic at points indicated above, according to plans recently announced by the inventor, Edward Armstrong. If these ocean landing fields prove practical it will not be unlikely that "week-end" trips to Europe may be made by American businessmen.

Italian Airmen Fail to Break Record

Takes His "Coffee and" Standing Up

During sessions of his current trial in New York, Harry K. Thaw, the Pittsburgh playboy, snatches a hasty luncheon in a nearby "beanery." He is pictured having his "coffee and." Thaw was sued by Marcia Eastard, dancer, who says he gave her a spanking during a party. She was given a $75,000 verdict.

STORM DAMAGE RUNS TO MILLIONS

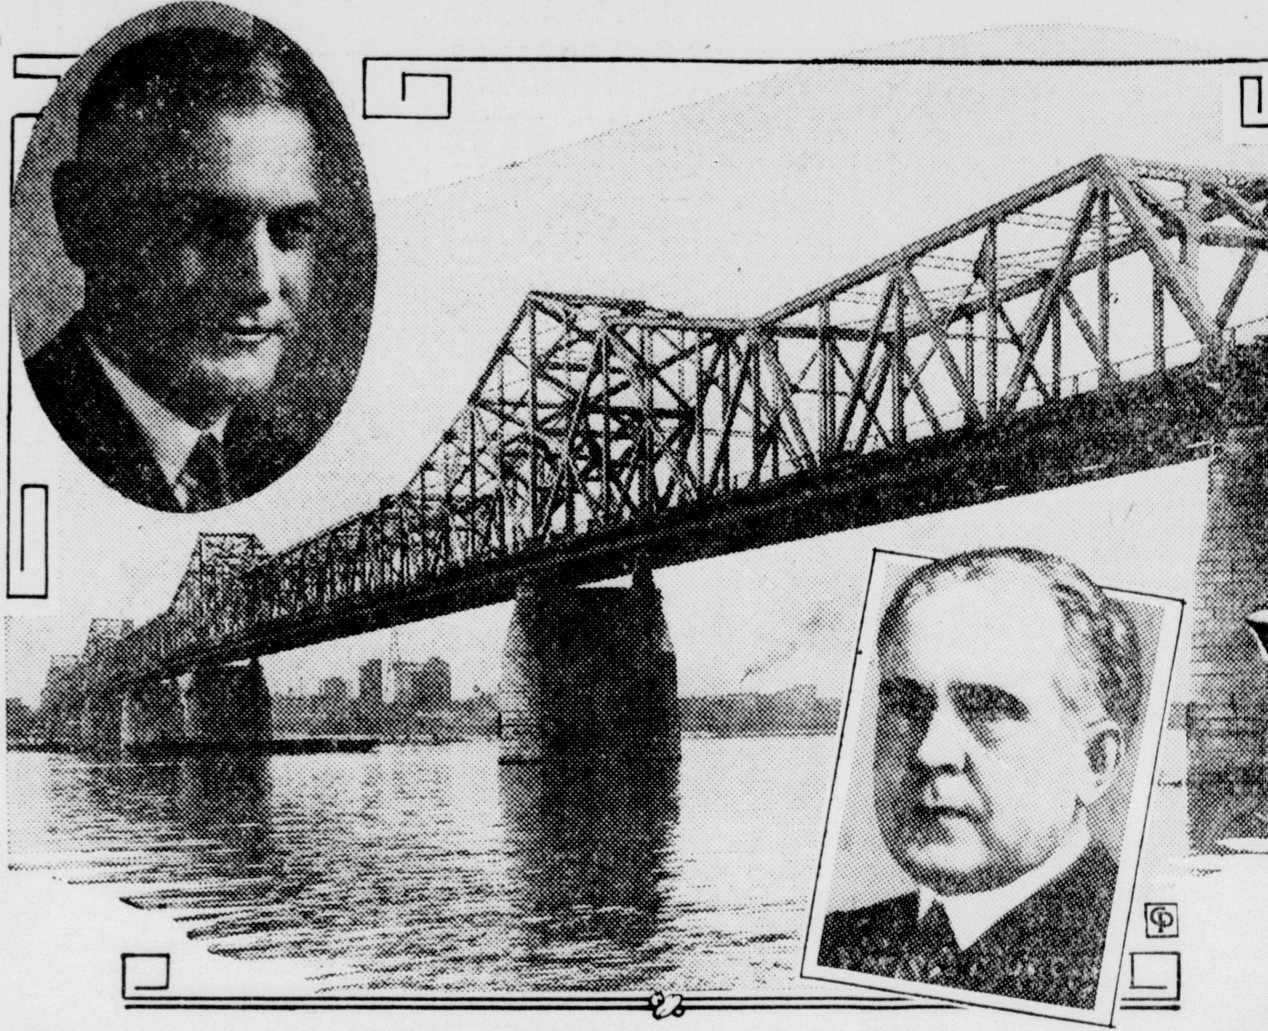

Property damage at Chicago and along the Indiana and Wisconsin shorelines of Lake Michigan is estimated in the millions, following a storm that whipped the Great Lakes, taking a heavy toll of life. Photos show some of the damage caused at Long Beach, Ind., where the rampant waters of Lake Michigan ruined many resort homes.

CINEMA STARS HALED INTO COURT

Accused of falsifying the income tax returns of a number of prominent moving picture stars, Marjorie Berger, tax counselor, has been on trial at Los Angeles. Dorothy Mackail and William Haines, insets, are shown as they appeared in court as witnesses.

TWO GOVERNORS TO DEDICATE MEMORIAL BRIDGE

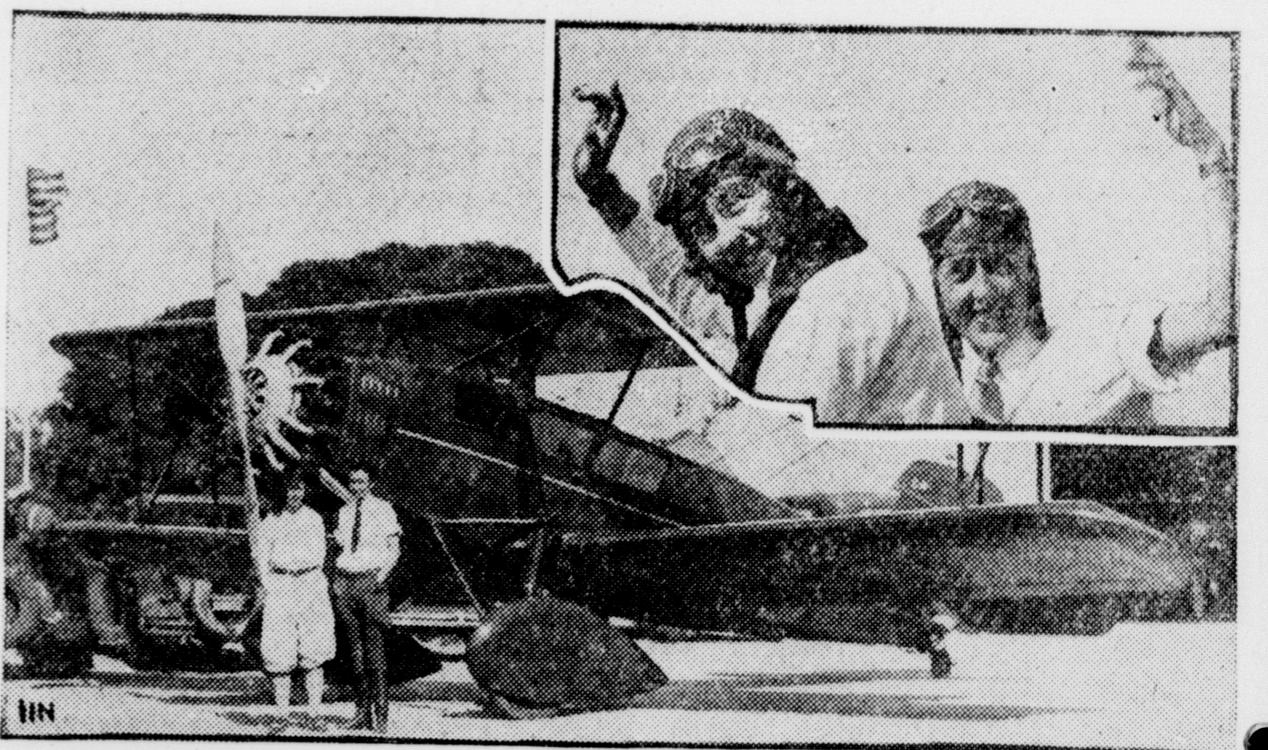

Governor Harry G. Leslie, left, above, of Indiana, and Governor Flem D. Sampson, right, of Kentucky, meet at Louisville, Oct. 30, in dedicating the new $5,000,000 Louisville Memorial bridge over the Ohio river, an integral link in America's north-south highway system. President Hoover, in Louisville for the dedication of the new Ohio river canalization project, was the first citizen to ride across the bridge.

Gene Tunney to Take Bride to Park Avenue

Captain E. W. Nast and J. C. Wist, of the Hollywood Fire Department, inspecting rolls of film in the laboratory of the Consolidated Film Industries, at Hollywood, Calif., following the explosion and fire which caused an estimated damage of $50,000,000 and loss of one life. The bulk of the loss lies in the destruction of the countless rolls of master negative feature films which cannot be replaced. The building itself was only valued at $400,000.

REGIONAL CHAIRMEN FOR CHEST DRIVE NAMED BY OFFICIAL

With division of the city into thirteen districts for the second annual Community Chest fund campaign November 19 to 26, inclusive, appointment of regional chairmen for each district who will direct the city-wide canvass for funds in their particular territories, has been completed, chest officials announce.

CHRIST'S TEACHING ABOUT SALVATION THURSDAY SUBJECT

"Christ's Teaching About Salvation" is the subject for study at the district Bible classes which are being held in various homes throughout the city, on Thursday of each week at 2:15 o'clock. All women are urged to attend the women in their district.

A progressive arrangement of conducting the classes is followed, the leaders being sent into different homes each week.

The committee wishes to thank those who are giving such splendid help in inviting friends and neighbors and urges that the co-operation be continued.

Classes will be held in same homes as those of last week except for the following changes:

District No. 1—Mrs. Jacob Marshall, N. Detroit St.

District No. 2—Mrs. A. C. McCormick, 566 N. Detroit St.

District No. 3—Mrs. J. P. Harshman, N. King St.

District No. 4—Mrs. Clarence Harper, 405 Cincinnati Ave.

District No. 5—Mrs. Fred Coy, 630 W. Second St.

District No. 6—Mrs. Jennie Stewart, 316 W. Main St.

OCEAN FLYER'S WIFE

Mrs. Urban F. Diteman, above, wife of the flyer who took off from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, for London, in an open plane, waits patiently at her home in Billings, Mont., for word of the lost flyer. Despite the fact that Diteman's life has been despaired of she continues to hope that he is safe.

will make the solicitation campaign. Each chairman will appoint workers for the various districts and supervise their efforts.

This method was followed last year and was found to simplify the collection of funds as well as to make certain that no prospects were overlooked.

A complete list of the regional chairmen for the chest drive follows:

District 1—Emil Eichman.
District 2—Mrs. Charles Weaver.
District 3—A. V. Miller.
District 4—E. H. Heathman.
District 5—Glen Reed.
District 6—Mrs. L. C. Landaker.
District 7—Miss Helen Graham.
District 8—Mrs. A. V. Moll.
District 9—Miss Stella Tuhey.
District 10—Schuyler N. McClellan.
District 11—Carl Ervin.
District 12—Mrs. Agnes Hurley.
East Side District—Rev. A. L. Dooley.

TWO ARRESTED IN BOOTLEG KILLING

CANTON, O., Oct. 30.—Two men were held here today charged with suspicion following their stories of the killing of James Dennis, alias James Kouraris, last night. Police blame a local bootleg war for the slaying.

Steve Stevens, 34, and Nick Bronis, 37, are the men held. Stevens told police that Dennis and a man named Anthony DePella, 21, entered the room in which he and Bronis were sleeping, with drawn guns. Stevens said he fired from his bed, hitting Dennis. Police found three loaded revolvers and five discharged shells on the porch of Stevens' home after the killing. Two more loaded guns were found inside the house.

VERDICT UPHELD

Appeal of L. O. Clemmer, Xenia dairyman, from a judgment of the Greene County courts which found him guilty of illegally refilling registered milk bottles belonging to John Ringer, Xenia, was rejected Wednesday by the Ohio Supreme Court, which upheld the decision of the lower courts. The case involved an alleged violation of the state law dealing with the labeling and branding of milk bottles.

TOBACCO SALE INCREASE
COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 30.—An increase of nearly three million dollars in tobacco sales was shown in comparison of this year's transactions in the state with last year's, according to an announcement by the commissioner of agriculture.

SAYS BUSINESS SOUND
WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Public and business anxiety over the crash in stocks was reflected today by a flood of telegrams received at the White House, the treasury, the federal reserve board, and other governmental agencies.

Thus far the only step taken by the administration, however, has been to permit Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, to go on the air with a speech extolling the basic soundness of the business structure.

GOOD NEWS GIRLS!

O H, listen, girls! Rudy Vallee has "gone radio" for a year.

The national jazz idol with the crooning tenor voice is now heard by a national audience each Thursday evening from 8 to 9 p. m. E. S. T., on a national advertising program.

The broadcast is from station WEAZ, New York and a coast-to-coast hookup which includes station WSAI, Cincinnati. Rudy was unknown a year ago. Now he sets feminine hearts a-fluttering all the way and back.

FARM BUREAU CHIEF ATTACKS PROPOSED TAX MEASURE HERE

"As I see the proposed tax amendment it is misleading, unnecessary, and unjust," said O. A. Dobbins, president of the Greene County Farm Bureau, speaking at a meeting of Ross Twp. Farm Bureau in the school Tuesday night.

"It is misleading because instead of being a tax limitation amendment, it is a clean-cut classification proposition, and is throwing everything open to the legislature to fix rates as low as they please on any class of property. There is an understanding among the organizations pushing this amendment that land and homes will get a fifteen mill rate, while intangibles will draw only two to five mills, and then perhaps they will be turned in for tax. But you cannot legislate morality into a people. The man who would not turn it in at 2 per cent (as now), will not at 1 per cent or even one-half of 1 per cent.

"It is a deliberate move on the part of many interests to legalize what they are now doing illegally. This same classification howl has been brought before the people about eleven times in the past seventeen years, and in almost every instance voted down, so general opinion must be that it is wrong in principle.

"The limitation idea is misleading for in the first clause of the proposed amendment it says that laws may be passed authorizing a higher rate when voted by the people, which they will do as they have in the past, for we now have the same limit by statute yet the voters have voted a higher rate in almost every taxing district in Ohio.

"The public bonds that are out must be paid, and the schedule plainly says that the limit does not apply until they are paid twenty, thirty or fifty years from now. So on the face of it the limitation idea is plainly misleading.

"Unnecessary: Almost every reform, they are telling us, will be brought about by the adoption of this amendment, is now within the power of the legislature to give us. Take for example double taxation. Why should a person who owns a farm, and half of it mortgaged, pay tax on all? And the man holding the mortgage note pay on his half of the farm, if he is honest?

"The legislature has seen fit to take care of Ohio corporations, but not the farmer or home owner. In other words, a factory organized as a corporation in Ohio pays tax on its property—then why should the shareholders or stockholders be taxed again on each share of this same property? This is not the case because it would be unfair, but the same pressure has not been brought to bear for the benefit of the farmer. It is now within the power of the legislature to relieve all double taxation, and for this reason this proposed amendment is unnecessary.

"Unfair: All property should pay its share of tax.

"Because a man has his wealth in the form of bank deposits, building and loan deposits, or bonds, is no reason why he should pay less than the home owner or farmer who has his property in a visible form.

"Remember that bonds now out

VISIT TO TESTING LABORATORY OF MANUFACTURER

Full Of Interest
Fadeometer One Of Interesting Devices For Testing Merchandise

Did you ever here of a fadeometer? It is one of a number of clever devices used in the Marshall Field and Company Wholesale Laboratory. As the name implies, it is used to test the color fastness of materials and is so constructed that it simulates very perfectly the effect of sunshine.

This organization maintains a laboratory with full chemical and physical testing equipment and a skilled chemist is constantly busy testing and experimenting on the many lines of merchandise which carries the Field shield—the guarantee of quality.

Strong electric lights are used to produce the effect of the heat and light of the sun's rays. A material which is fast enough in color to pass a satisfactory test is durable indeed. A sixty hour test in the Fadeometer produces the same effect as one hundred hours of sunshine—and rarely is any material subjected to so much direct contact with sunshine in the ordinary period of wear.

Many other devices are used which are equally interesting. There is a Launderometer which tests the washing and wearing quality of merchandise. A tensile strength machine records the strength per square inch of fabrics. A carpet abrasion machine is used to subject napped materials such as rugs, velvets and velours to wearing tests.

With such equipment the Field chemist is able to report with accuracy the quality of the merchandise which comes to him for testing. Thus it is that the quality of Field merchandise is always standard. Thus it is that Jobe's through their affiliation with this great house can assure their customers of quality merchandise.

must be paid over and above the fifteen mill limitation if necessary, and many of these bonds will be still unpaid ten or twenty years from now.

"The second sentence of Section 2 says lands and improvements thereon shall be taxed by uniform rule according to value, but in another place it says laws may be passed taxing other classes of property. What will the legislature do?

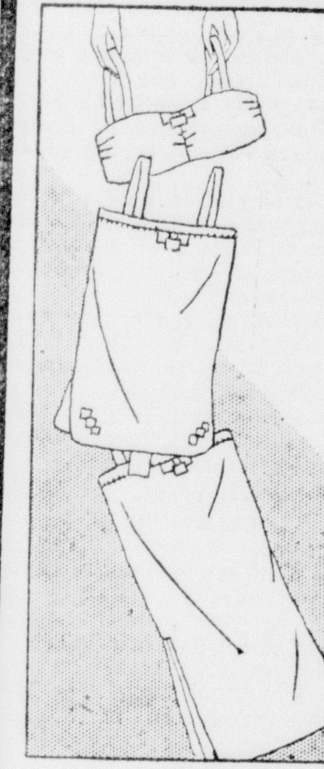

"Remember again that the legislature will have full power to fix rates on different classes of property and that there is no recourse or remedy by referendum, as the initiative and referendum does not apply to tax laws.

"With this rate fixing power vested in the legislature, it will make our taxing laws a political issue. Ohio will have to endure taxes what our national government does for tariff. Business will be effected and unsettled as the result."

READ THIS FIRST:

Rosalie March, seventeen, the prettiest girl in the high school graduating class at Rendale, Pa., a mining and brick yard village, is stunned by the death of her widowed mother, the town seamstress. She is left penniless and totally unequipped to combat the world. The day after graduation Neil McKinley, her childhood playmate, who lived across the street, begins to show an interest in her for the first time in years. He had dates with her, and calls her his "new little sweetheart." After the death of Mrs. March, Kenessa Du Barry, formerly of Rendale, a burlesque actress, comes home to visit her mother, and offers Rosalie two dresses and half of her bankroll of fifteen dollars so that she may go to Philadelphia and find a job. Rosalie quarrels with Neil because he does not approve of Kenessa. She leaves without saying good-bye to him.

In the city Rosalie goes to Mother Murphy's boarding house. Mother has the heart of a saint, and takes her in as though she were a helpless baby.

Tim O'Hara, the corner newsie, tells Rosalie to go to a store advertising for girls when she asks him for a copy of the paper with the most ads in it. Tim, red-headed and freckled, falls in love with her and calls Rosalie "Queen."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

Tim was waiting at his news stand with a big, broad grin when Rosalie returned, shortly after noon.

"You got it! I can tell by the dimples in your face," he leaned toward her. "Bet you knocked old Brewer for a seat in the front row!"

"I got it just without any trouble at all," she laughed, happily. "I told him I was nineteen and he believed me. Imagine that!"

"He knew you wasn't more'n sixteen," Tim showed his big teeth. "Oh, but I am, I'm seventeen, last March," she confided, sociably. "Tim drew a long face.

"Wait up, queen, I got three years yet to catch up with you. But I'll shake a leg."

Suddenly Tim was the business man.

"How much is Boggs and Clarke payin' you?"

"A whole twelve dollars," she answered, unhesitatingly. It did not seem at all like a personal question, coming from Tim.

"The damned old pirate!" Tim flushed, angrily. "That old skinflint Clarke would take the lollypop right out of an orphan's fist. You oughta get $14 at least—even for a beginner. How can a swell dame like you dress and eat on nothing?"

"That's something! That's a fortune," Rosalie boasted. "I've never earned a nickel in my life! My board is only $7.50. That will leave me $4.50 for lunch and car fare."

"But what are you goin' to use for kale to buy silk socks and hats and dresses with, I ask you?" Tim was figuring.

"I've got three dresses," Rosalie said a little bit shakily. "A white one for parties, a green dress and coat that's nice, and this black a dress for work."

"That won't last forever," Tim countered.

"We'll do our worrying when the time comes," Rosalie smiled, reassuringly, as though they were partners and she had known him all her life.

In Tim, Rosalie had found a warm friend—who was to play a leading role in her life during the months that followed.

Tim shook his head as she disappeared into the house.

"No wonder the streets is full of crooks and gold diggers! Twelve dollars a week—huh!"

Mother Murphy beamed when Rosalie called her and told the good news.

"Sure, 'tis your lucky star shinin' on ye, colleen. I never seen it happen before. Glittin' the first job quick as ye could snap yer fingers. It's tint dimples—again!"

That evening a radio played the "Saint Louis Blues." A girl sang this time:

"Saint Louis woman without her diamond rings, Tied that man o' mine to her apron strings."

It reminded Rosalie so poignantly of her first dance—with Neil—and of how she had stolen away without telling her mother, that she threw herself across the bed and started to cry.

Mother Murphy tapped on the door and came in. When she saw Rosalie in tears she went over and took her up like a baby.

"Here, colleen, I'll hold ye and ye just cry it all out on Mother Murphy's lap. Sure, I know the pore child feels all alone and achin'!"

"Tis a sad world. But sometimes ye'll be all happy and smilin', ma-younneen."

"How much is Boggs and Clarke payin' you?"

A few minutes later Rosalie, noticeably hard-boiled Kenessa Du Barry. And when she took the cook downstairs later she threw up her hands in holy pity:

"God be helpin' the lamb when she begins to open her poor little eyes!"

The next morning Rosalie awakened with the feeling that something nice was going to happen. When she was thoroughly awake she remembered. It was the day she was to go to work.

Jumping from bed she hurried to the bathroom and took a cold shower. She felt happier than she had for weeks.

But her happiness was not for long.

She began pulling on the silk stockings Kenessa had given her—carefully, to make sure she wouldn't start a run. Then she discovered that, mysteriously, an inch-wide run had started down the front of one of them.

She sat for a moment, staring unbelievably, her heart sinking so that she could hardly breathe. They were her only pair!

Tearfully she went to her suitcase and brought out a pair of the familiar lisle and cotton ones. They looked so cheap and heavy beside the silk wreck on the floor that she felt she could never face the world in them.

But she had to go.

And on that silk stocking with the rueful run hangs the real story of Rosalie March.

BELLBROOK

Our village blacksmith, C. F. Mills, has been ill for the past few days.

Raymond Rohrbaugh is able to be out again after a siege with rheumatism.

Charles Peterson and family of Huntington, W. Va., spent a few days here with his mother, Mrs. Emma Peterson and his brother, O. R. Peterson and family of Dayton.

The high powered electrical man who seemed a forerunner of old time prosperity and promised to break the dull spell and put Bellbrook on the map, disappeared from the village after about one-third of the natives had been given good positions ranging in pay from $22 to $160 per week.

Zeva Morris was a Sunday visitor with her father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Walter Morris.

GOOD SALE PRICES

Good prices featured the Jamestown Combination Sale held last Friday at Jamestown with milk cows consigned by Charles K. O'Brien bringing as high as $142.50, top price for the sale. O'Brien also had the largest consignment in the sale, his property amounting to $1,500. He won prizes for having the largest consignment and for having the cow bringing the highest price.

Mrs. Rose Ruoff Brice, above, has launched a struggle in Detroit probate court to reclaim her 12-year-old son, James F. Smith, heir to a $3,000,000 estate. When the boy was a few months old Mrs. Brice gave him away because of her poor health. His foster parents died recently, leaving the boy the bulk of their estate.

The Theater

With a goal of 300 in view, sale of membership tickets in the Little Theater Guild of Xenia is reported progressing favorably by Miss Allegra Hawes, membership chairman. Membership workers, are pointing out also, that while it is a Xenia organization, the membership rolls are open to anyone in Greene County interested in amateur theatrical work. They believe that 300 is not too many to expect from this territory in support of a movement that has drawn many times that number to its ranks in communities smaller than Xenia.

The Guild membership entitles the holder to an opportunity to participate in the public dramatic presentations of the organization each year, if the member is so in-

TAX AMENDMENT SUPPORTED IN TALK BEFORE KIWANIS

"In many respects the so-called 'uniform system' of taxation now in effect in Ohio today is as unscientific, unfair and unjust as the Roman system of taxation in operation 2,000 years ago and as out of date as the canal boat, the ox-cart or the chariot," said Earl C. Rohn, assistant cashier of the Ohio National Bank, Lima, O., in his talk before the Kiwanis Club dinner-meeting at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening, on the proposed "tax limit amendment."

"Taxation is as old as civilization, harking back through the ages to the beginning of recorded time. But the laws made even as far back as 1851 the year the present tax system of Ohio was originated, are not suited to the present day economic and social needs, any more than those made in the time of Caesar."

"In many respects our system parallels that of the ancient times which were so heavy that the people were reduced to poverty. It was the Romans who divided their territory up into districts and sold the districts to the highest bidders. The successful bidders then proceeded to collect the tax and they did a real job of it," he said.

"In many such ways the present system of taxation in Ohio threatens to destroy our prosperity and reduce our land owners to a state of penury unless the 'Tax Limit Amendment' is ratified by the Ohio voters, November 5."

In illustrating the present situation in Ohio, Rohn said that 20 per cent of the property which is real estate is paying 70 per cent of the total tax and that 70 per cent of the property, which is intangible and tangible wealth, pays but 30 per cent of the tax.

"According to the figures gathered by the 'All-Ohio Tax League' more than fifteen billions of dollars of intangible wealth absolutely escapes taxation each year," Rohn said, "and yet in the face of such an indictment as this, there are some who are still clinging to the 'uniform rule' because they say they are opposed to classification."

"Under the so-called 'uniform rule' as practiced in Ohio we have had and now have a type of classification which is vicious in character and unscientific in principle," he continued.

"This question readily falls into three parts, cause, effect and remedy. In 1851 the constitution of Ohio was amended to provide a system of taxation known as the 'uniform rule'. Under this system laws were passed taxing at a uniform rate all monies, credits, investments in stocks and bonds, joint stock companies and otherwise, and all real estate and personal property at the true value in money."

"Gone are the days of seventy years ago. Great changes have taken place in population, in forms of wealth, in industrial expansion and diversification. But we still cling to this ancient relic of the past and by legislative tinkering try to shape it to modern times and conditions. It can't be done."

"An honest effort to enforce the 'uniform rule' in Ohio would result in ruin to the state. It has been proven that the system cannot be enforced in the true letter and spirit of the constitution."

"Our people have but three avenues to escape this rule," Rohn said, "the first—by the creation of trusts outside the state by men of wealth. This now is being done and millions of dollars are leaving Ohio annually. Second—by investment in tax free securities and third—by committing perjury once a year by swearing to a false report to tax authorities."

"Because of the tax situation in Ohio, new industries which would like to locate within the state because it is the crossroad of the nation, pass on to Michigan or Pennsylvania."

"Ohio under the so-called 'uniform rule' assesses seven times as much visible property as Kentucky, and millions less than Kentucky in intangibles, yet the return in stocks and bonds in Louisville alone is greater than the whole state of Ohio."

"Kentucky's intangibles pay 32 per cent of the state's taxes while Ohio's pay one per cent. Kentucky's real estate pays 32 per cent of the taxes of the state but Ohio's is forced to stand the burden to the extent of 75 per cent."

"The proposed 'Tax Limit Amendment' which will be brought before the voters next month, proposes two things," Rohn said, "the first—a limit to taxation and the second to provide an equitable system to raise these taxes."

"The amendment was drafted, has the backing and active support of fourteen of the leading tax-paying organizations of the state. Back of these organizations, which cover agriculture, manufacturing, commerce and finance, are men who are tax payers whose judgment is sound and can be relied upon."

"We can trust the legislature," Rohn said in conclusion, "for every legislature acts upon the dictates of the electors when their wishes are known—and our legislature is no exception. If the voters of Ohio fail to pass the proposed 'Tax Limit Amendment' it will be one of the greatest wrongs thrust upon the state in many years." Hallowe'en party but the program was informal.

The meeting took the form of a

DAYTON BOUND CAR CRUSHED BY TRUCK

The front vestibule of a Dayton and Xenia interurban car was crushed when a truck owned by the Miami Motor Co., Cincinnati, driven by C. J. Miller, Cincinnati, backed into the car on W. Main St., between Detroit and King Sts., as the car was starting for Dayton at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Ezra Fitzwater, Dayton, motorman on the car, was showered with broken glass, but not hurt. Irvin Underwood, was the conductor. The truck was not damaged.

NEW BRIDGE RULE

XENIA bridge fans are interested in the new rule proposed by Sidney Lenz, bridge expert and adopted by the card committee of the Knickerbocker Whist Club, New York, which removes the "murder motive" from the game.

The rule substitutes the "challenge" for the "negative" or "informative" double, and was adopted after a period of trial in regular play over a period of several months at the club. The application of the "challenge" is precisely the same as that of the negative double.

After the original bid by an adversary, the player holding a strong hand which he prefers not to bid himself; informs his partner and demands his partner to bid by using the words: "I challenge." The partner must respond by bidding his best suit.

The new rule is believed to make for a clearer understanding than the informative double, which was frequently difficult to distinguish from the business double. Lenz says: "Let the double be exactly what it says: an expressed hope to defeat the adverse bid."

SEVENTY MILLION CHRISTMAS SEALS RELEASED IN OHIO

Seventy million Christmas health seals will ring in Ohio's health greetings this year as a part of the nation wide fight against tuberculosis, according to Dr. Robert H. Bishop, Jr., of Cleveland, president of the Ohio Public Health Association.

The 1929 seal pictures a bell ringer, tugging at a bell. He is a ray little chap, wearing a red cloak, a yellow cap and yellow trousers. He and his bell stand out against a dark blue background. The double barred cross, international emblem of the tuberculosis worker, appears in red in the lower right hand corner and across the top of the seal in white letters are the words, "Health Greetings 1929."

"Although the tuberculosis death rate has been reduced over one-half in the last twenty years, the fact still remains that one out of every four persons, who die between the ages of 15 and 44, are victims of the disease," Dr. Bishop points out.

Distribution of the health seals will start the day after Thanksgiving and will continue until the day before Christmas. Health groups in towns and counties throughout the state will take part in the sale for the twenty-second consecutive year.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Glen Patterson, assistant coach and gym director, at Central High is beginning to organize volleyball ball teams among his gym classes.

Each team will be given the name of some Ohio college or university and will try its best to win for that school.

The one and out system will be used. By this we mean that when a team loses a game it is eliminated from further play.

Much interest is being shown by everyone in the gym classes and a close race is expected. A team captained by Kenneth Finley won last year's championship after a hard battle with the fighting little junior high team.

Coach Patterson will have full charge of the play, as he did last year, and according to "Pat," this year's play will bring forth some good talent.

All games will be played in the Central gymnasium.

SENATOR NORRIS TO SEEK RE-ELECTION; DEFIES PRESIDENT

Reconsiders Plan To Retire; Opponent
Is Picked

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—In a remarkable statement, bristling with defiance of the Hoover administration and its leaders, Senator George W. Norris, the veteran Republican insurgent from Nebraska, served notice today that he intends to stand for re-election on a platform that boasts rather than apologizes for his party irregularities.

"I would rather be right than regular," said Norris.

Particular interest attaches to the Nebraska decision to run again, for he was the only Republican senator to leave his party openly during the 1928 election and came out flat-footed for Governor Al Smith.

Because of this and because of his lengthy record of party insurgency in the senate, the Nebraska asserts that he has been stung out by the administration forces for discipline and defeat next year, Norris had planned to retire at the end of his present term, but he now declares that to do so under existing conditions would amount to a "political cowardice" of which he is incapable.

"My opponent in this contest has already been selected in the person of Mr. McKelvie (ex-Governor Samuel R. McKelvie)," said Norris. "This has been apparent ever since he was named by President Hoover on the new farm board, and recent developments, including statements by Mr. McKelvie himself, make it plain that he is to be the candidate representing the administration or if for any reason it is later decided he is not the most available man, some other candidate will be substituted for him."

For more than a quarter of a century Norris has been a consistent and outstanding insurgent in congress. With the late "Bob" La Follette he shared the leadership in virtually every revolt against the party machinery that has taken place in that time, beginning with the overthrow of "Cannoinism" in the house twenty years ago, and continuing down to today when he is opposing administration policy in tariff and its methods of farm relief.

"I have pursued for the course I have pursued," said the Nebraska, after a lengthy review of his record of opposition. "And the only promise I now make is that if I am re-elected I will continue to pursue it. If it is the judgment of the people of Nebraska that my course has been wrong—that they want a senator who cares more for party regularity than political righteousness—then they should select someone else to take my place."

The whole insurgent group of the senate, which numbers variously from eight to twelve and includes such figures as Borah (R) of Idaho, La Follette (R) of Wisconsin, probably will come to the aid of the veteran Nebraska for personal as well as political reasons.

If he is defeated in the primary, Norris will be "drafted" to run independently. The apprehension of the insurgent group over what the future holds for them has been growing for some time, and really came to a head with the appointment of Otto H. Kahn, New York banker, as treasurer of the Republican senatorial campaign committee. They feared that the committee, headed by Senator Moses (R) of New Hampshire, a regular of "neutrals," would raise large sums of money to be sent into their states to finance fights against them.

Some of this apprehension disappeared today with Kahn's announcement in New York that he would not accept the appointment. Whether the position will be offered to another is uncertain.

Senator Fess Will Speak At Last Rites For Burton

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The business of official Washington was perceptibly slowed today as President Hoover, members of the cabinet and congress, prepared to pay tribute to the memory of Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, who died at his home here Monday night.

A figure in the nation's legislative life for forty years and a power in the present congress, the veteran Ohio statesman was to be accorded the senate's highest honor—a state funeral in its chamber.

President Hoover, who expressed his deep regret at the passing of a personal friend and close adviser, accepted the senate's invitation to attend the funeral.

Many members of the house, in which Sen. Burton also served, returned to the city especially for the services in which they were asked to join by the senate.

Because of Senator Burton's long activity in international affairs, the diplomatic corps was expected to attend the funeral en masse, members of the supreme court and the cabinet were a part of the official party invited to participate in the rites.

Senator Burton, who would have reached his seventy-eighth birthday in December, had not married. Several nieces and nephews were among the family mourners.

The senate, which laid aside the highly controversial tariff bill yesterday and today to honor Burton, also will virtually suspend business tomorrow as twenty members will accompany the body to Cleveland for burial. The entire house delegation and the Republican and Democratic leaders—Reps. Tilson (R) of Connecticut and Garner (D) of Texas—also were named to attend the rites in Cleveland.

The state funeral program provided for the transfer of the body from the residence to the senate chamber at noon, there to lie in state until taken to a train in the evening. Both the senate chaplain, Rev. Z. B. Phillips, the house chaplain, Dr. James Shera Montgomery, and Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, President Coolidge's pastor, were to officiate. Senator Fess of Ohio and Speaker Longworth, also of Ohio, were to speak.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Final arrangements for the funeral of Senator Theodore E. Burton, who died in Washington Monday, were virtually completed today as an Ohio prepared to pay its last respects to one of its greatest statesmen. The plans are being carried forward in accordance with the senator's own wishes which he made known more than a month before his death. Details of the arrangements were left in the hands of William R. Hopkins, Cleveland city manager.

The flag-draped casket bearing the body of the revered Ohio statesman will arrive at Union Station aboard a Pennsylvania train at 8:10 tomorrow morning, escorted by a detachment of the 145th infantry, it will be taken to Public Hall where it will lie in state in the foyer of Public Music Hall from 9:30 to 1:15 p. m.

At 1:15 p. m. the funeral carriage containing the body will be escorted by troops A and G of the Ohio National Guard to Euclid Avenue Congregational Church. The funeral services there will be in charge of Rev. Ferdinand O. Blanchard, pastor. The funeral oration will be delivered by Bishop William F. McDowell of the Washington area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who administered the last sacrament to the senator as he lay dying.

Following the church services the body will be escorted to Lake View Cemetery. There the services will be conducted by the Knight Templars.

CLEVELAND MUSEUM
SURRENDERS IVORY
CARVING TO OWNERS

Learn Diptych Was Stolen From Jugoslavians.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Convinced that the priceless ivory diptych in the art museum here was the one stolen from the Zagreb cathedral in Yugoslavia and to pay any further international complications, authorities of the Cleveland art museum surrendered the carving to Dr. Leonidas Pittamic, Yugoslav minister who returned with it to Washington today.

The carving, one of the most important of the world-famous Cleveland collection of ivories, had left a trail across Europe and the United States that secret service men of Yugoslavia, France, and the United States have been trying to uncover for months.

It is the only complete work of its kind in existence. It is composed of four panels bound together by a huge jewel in the center. The jewel, a carved topaz as big as a dollar, is missing. The museum here never received it. A paste imitation was substituted.

Sometime during the summer of 1927 the ivory was taken from the silver frame in the vaults of the cathedral and a copy believed to have been substituted.

In June 1928 it was in a Paris gallery, from whom it was bought by curators of the Cleveland museum through a New York agency.

TURNED UP FOR OLD
MURDER BY COUSIN

GREENUP, Ky., Oct. 30.—Roy ("Bully") Floyd, 45, will go on trial in circuit court here Friday for the eight-year-old slaying of his cousin, William Floyd.

After the death of William in October, 1921, Roy fled to Pontiac, Mich., where he lived with his family under an alleged assumed name.

His identity was unknown until recently when another cousin and a second man held-up and robbed him of $25.

Floyd said he was recognized by his cousin, who told him he would expose his identity as a fugitive from justice, if charges against his cousin and the hold-up man were pressed.

When Roy refused to waive prosecution against the highwaymen, the cousin "squealed" and Roy was arrested on the old murder charge.

Roy arranged bond of $5,000 for his appearance and returned to Pontiac, Mich. He is expected to plead self-defense at his trial.

SPECULATION RIFE ON APPOINTMENT OF BURTON SUCCESSOR

More Than Twenty Suggested; Donahay Not Interested

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Speculation was rampant in Ohio political circles today as to who will be selected to succeed Senator Theodore E. Burton, who died in Washington Monday night, at his post in the nation's capitol.

More than twenty possibilities have been suggested, including four Toledoans, five Republicans from Cincinnati, five Clevelanders and other outstanding Republicans from other parts of the state. Gov. Cooper's decision, which will not be announced until after Senator Burton's funeral, will rest largely upon public opinion, it is understood.

Among the possibilities suggested for the office are:

Former Congressman Roscoe McCulloch of Canton; Charles L. Knight, Akron newspaper man; James A. White of Columbus, former anti-saloon league superintendent of Ohio; William C. Proctor, Cincinnati soap manufacturer; W. F. Wiley, Cincinnati newspaper publisher; Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives; Walter F. Brown of Toledo, postmaster general in the Hoover cabinet; Grove Patterson, Toledo newspaper publisher; Marshall Shepperd of Toledo; John N. Willys, Toledo manufacturer; former congressman James T. Beag of Sandusky; Rupert Beetham, state prohibition administrator of Cadiz; Charles Simeral, Steubenville publisher, and Charles R. Frederickson, Coshocton manufacturer.

Cleveland possibilities include Carmel A. Thompson, former treasurer of the United States and former secretary of state of Ohio; James R. Garfield, son of the former president; William Boyd, attorney; Paul Howard, former member of congress, and Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee.

CANTON, O., Oct. 30.—Former Governor Vic Donahay, in an interview here last night, declared that rumors that he would run for the senatorial chair vacated by the death of the late Senator Theodore E. Burton are untrue.

"I am retired from public life and now am enjoying private life," he said.

In reply to the question, "what if the party insists?" Donahay said, "Well, no man is bigger than his party."

Donahay addressed 1,500 people here last night to endorse Herman Witter, former state director of industrial relations, who is running for mayor.

MARKET RALLIES AT OPEN WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Stock prices rallied at the opening today in the wake of yesterday's hectic 16,410,830-share session.

Ten thousand shares of Radio sold at 23, half a point higher. United States Steel, traditional bellwether of the market, opened 3 points higher at 177.

Twenty thousand shares of Consolidated Gas opened 3-4 higher at 92-1-4.

The rally embraced practically the entire list.

New Haven opened at 92, up 2-1-8; Canadian Pacific 209-1-4, up 8-1-4 and Erie 67-1-8, up 1-7-8.

These gains had a distinctly optimistic effect in the financial district.

DEFECTIVE FLUE BLAMED FOR FIRE

CARROLLTON, O., Oct. 30.—A spark from defective wiring, which is believed to have fallen into a tank of naphtha, today is held responsible for the $500,000 fire which destroyed the plant of the Tuscan Tire and Rubber Company here yesterday afternoon.

Though the plant was equipped with an automatic sprinkler system, it proved inadequate against the flames.

The three-story brick building was destroyed.

There will also be a band concert at the platform and the spirit of revelry will be permitted to hold full sway, unconfined by police regulations or the ordinary conventions. Merchants are giving this party for Xenians and everyone else who wants to take part and are hoping for and expecting a record crowd of merry-makers.

BUCYRUS CITY OFFICIALS ARE REBUKED BY GRAND JURY PROBE

BUCYRUS, O., Oct. 30.—Falling to "fix criminal responsibility sufficiently to warrant an indictment" the Crawford County grand jury, after an eight-day session, today had sharply rebuked Mayor Arthur Schuler, Service Director Clarence Kober, and Superintendent of Waterworks Roy Riley.

The city officials were criticized for permitting conditions to exist whereby money persistently disappeared from the cash drawers and safes in the city water and garbage office.

Reinstatement of Miss Lucille Hertzler, cashier of the water office, who was suspended recently because of indiscreet charges which she made, was also recommended by the grand jury.

Miss Hertzler was suspended after she charged that Miss Edith Ferrall, cashier in the water office now, was responsible for at least a part of the alleged shortages and was holding her job because of political connections.

The former girl employee now has a suit pending in the common pleas court against Mayor Schuler and Service Director Kober, demanding reinstatement.

SHOOTS WOMAN AND COMMITTS SUICIDE

DENISON, O., Oct. 30.—What is believed to have been a "lover's quarrel" today had led to the death of a man and the serious wounding of a 41-year-old widow.

James S. Woods, 45, a steel mill worker, is the dead man.

He went to the home of Mrs. Anna Walters, the widow, yesterday afternoon, where the couple is said to have quarreled.

Woods, becoming infuriated, shot and seriously wounded the widow, who ran into the street and collapsed.

He turned the gun on himself and fired a bullet into his own temple. He died in a hospital last night.

The two are said to have "kept company" for some time and Woods' jealousy over the visit of another man is believed to have caused the argument which was climaxed by tragedy.

SOVIET PLANE IS DUE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The plane, Land of the Soviets, and its crew of four who have travelled over Russia, Asia, Alaska, Canada and the United States is expected to arrive at Curtiss Airport in Valley Stream, L. I., this afternoon.

A reception program to be carried out on the field has been arranged by the Society of Friends of the Soviet Union and the Am-Torg Trading Corporation. Mayor Walker will receive the flyers at City Hall tomorrow.

DEFEATS BLIZZARD OVER CONTINENTAL DIVIDE BY LANDING

Men Feared Lost After Safe After Night
Spent In Wilds

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Pilot James E. Doles today had beaten a two-day blizzard on the continental divide of New Mexico to bring his western air express passenger liner safe into port.

Doles landed his ship with two passengers and two other crew members aboard in a small snow-covered field near Trechado, N. M., Monday to save the ship and five lives.

After more than twenty-four hours of isolation during which an intensive air and ground search was begun Doles seized a break in the storm to drive the powerful tri-motored ship into the air and land it two hours later at Albuquerque, N. M.

By this feat, Doles kept intact a record for safe flying for his company.

The passengers were Dr. Abraham Ward, San Francisco dental surgeon and official of the Commercial Alloys Corporation and W. E. Metz, former big league baseball pitcher, now a New York buyer of woolen fabrics.

Doles flew into a blinding snow storm soon after leaving Holbrook on a scheduled hop to Albuquerque, enroute to Kansas City.

He turned to dodge the storm, and when the storm closed in about him, made what he called a "precautionary landing" in the field.

He was forty-five miles from a telephone and five miles from the nearest house.

During a freezing day and night the crew and passengers took refuge in an abandoned house.

During the second day of their wait, the plane's occupants were visited by a woman who had seen the ship come down, and walked five miles through the snow to enter the house.

At that time, however, Doles, knowing that a search was in progress, determined to get back into the air.

After digging the snow from around the giant liner's landing wheels, he made a perfect take-off.

Two hours later he was at the Albuquerque airport of the Western Air Express.

Doles said: "I could see down below not a very large place, but it looked safe and I got down there and got down quick."

"We thought then that the storm would clear and so we waited at the ship with the idea of taking off later in the afternoon (Monday)."

"I found an old vacant house and we all moved over there."

"By this time the snow was more than a foot deep on the ground."

"I built a fire then, but we like to freeze to death. Our food and water were gone."

"We stuck there until 1:30 p. m. (Mountain Standard time)."

"It was just starting to snow again when we took off."

The weather appeared impassable and so I sat the ship down at the first safe place I could find."

"I would have telephoned so as to have avoided worry to relatives and friends of those who were with us, but there was no telephone within many miles of where we were."

Metz was returning from a world-circling trip. Dr. Ward was enroute from San Francisco to Fort Worth, Tex., to address a convention of 500 delegates of a dental society.

While the search was on, the wives of Doles, his co-pilot, Allen Darrie, and Robert L. Britten, steward of the missing air liner said they were sure their husbands would return. "Jimmy will be home tomorrow," Mrs. Doles said.

"I recalled the T. A. disaster," Doles explained. "That is the reason I came down when the snow-storm cut off the visibility. I couldn't afford to take any chances and fly blind."

The snow began to blind his vision when he passed over Holbrook, the pilot said. He circled low and picked the first smooth stretch he could find and there set the ship down with no difficulty.

Two box lunches and two thermos bottles of hot coffee furnished the five men food. Co-pilot Allen C. Barrie of Burbank, Cal., procured some sandwiches at a ranchhouse some miles away. R. L. Britton of Los Angeles was the steward.

None of the five men remembered to ask the name of a woman who braved the storm Monday to reach the plane when she heard it roar low overhead. She directed the five men to the deserted farm house which afforded them shelter.

STATE EDUCATION DIRECTOR'S
INSPECTING COUNTY SCHOOLS

Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, came to Greene County Wednesday for the purpose of looking over the school situation in Beavercreek and Caesar Creek Twp. Rural School Districts, the school boards of the two districts having authorized special bond issues for school purposes to be voted on at the November 5 election.

Because both districts have been ordered to make provision for adequate and more modern school facilities if they are to continue to receive high school recognition, Beavercreek Twp. school district will vote on a $155,000 bond issue to finance construction of a consolidated high school and Caesar Creek Twp. district will pass upon a $55,000 issue for construction of an addition and extension of its school system.

Decision to consolidate the school system in Beavercreek Twp., was reached by the board of education following receipt from Director Clifton of a letter containing a report of L. L. Louthian, of the state department of education, who inspected the schools in that district October 2, 1929.

"The situation," the report said, "should have the immediate and constructive attention of the board of education. It is true that there are many features which are worthy of appreciation but the building was inadequate five years ago and the four classrooms and Smith-Hughes quarters are even more inadequate now for the 111 pupils in the four-year school."

"Unfortunately, also all the elementary pupils are trained in their one-room schools; at least a part of the elementary education in a community which has so many good roads should be offered in a consolidated school. Unless provision for adequate and also modern facilities can be in process of realization by the close of this school year, the community should not expect to offer more than elementary grade work after next May."

"It was observed that the pupils were applying themselves well and that there was some good teaching. The Smith-Hughes department of agriculture is evidence of a good purpose on the part of the board of education. We hope that the board of education will be able to work out this situation constructively to the end that the elementary as well as high school children may have modern school facilities and advantages in the near future. Your high school recognition will continue until the close of the present school year."

Director Clifton made a survey of the school situation in Beavercreek Twp. Wednesday morning and in the afternoon inspected schools of Caesar Creek Twp.

The building which is proposed to be built in Beavercreek Twp. will be a two-story structure, containing twenty-four rooms with a capacity range of between 600 and 800 children. Plans call for a separate auditorium and gymnasium which in an emergency can be combined and provide accommodations for an excess of 1,000 persons.

Erection of the new school would mean the passing of the present high school building, erected about 1850, which is of historical interest because Beavercreek Twp. is credited with being the first township in Ohio to have its own superintendent and high school building.

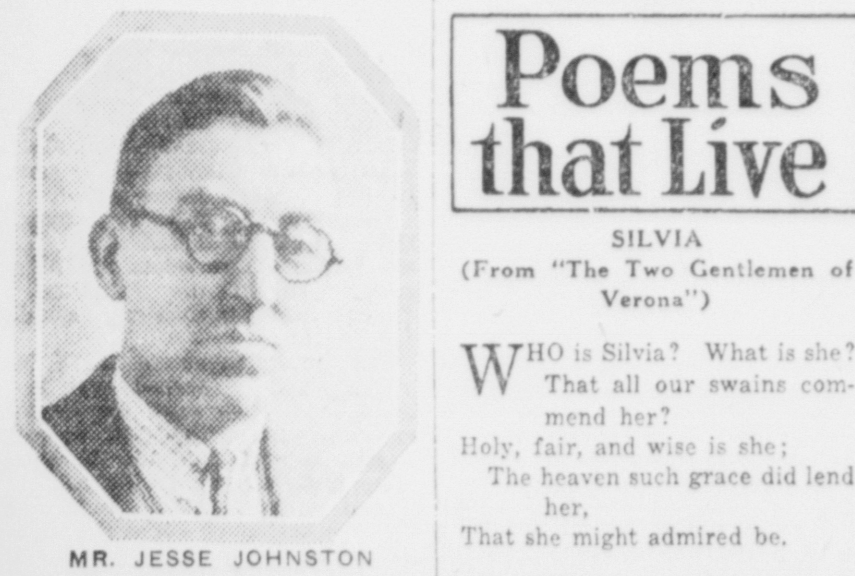

In all probability it will mean the abandonment and sale of thirteen of the one-room "Little Red Schoolhouses" in the district although the consolidation system is distinguished from centralization by the fact abandonment of the one-room schools is not mandatory.

Voters of the district are being urged to support the bond issue, however, inasmuch as the present building does not measure up to the requirements of the state department of education, the requirements of the state department of education, the requirements of the state department of education.

"REMARKABLE ARE MERITS OF FAMED KONJOLA"

Man Had Abandoned Hope—Then Found Relief From Severe Complications.

"Remarkable are the merits of this famous Konjola," said Mr. Jesse Johnston, 951 West Eighth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. "For a long time it was impossible for me to eat and relish a meal because the food simply refused to digest. I rapidly lost strength and energy; was pale and thin and rundown in general. Neuritis settled in my shoulders and the pains were terrible. "Konjola was recommended to me and I made up my mind to give it a trial. From the very start it benefited me. Steadily I regained my lost weight and strength. When the poisons were eliminated from my system, the neuritis disappeared. Today I sleep, eat and feel like a different person. I praise Konjola because I know what it has done for me it will do for everyone."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

SILVIA
(From "The Two Gentlemen of Verona")

WHO is Silvia? What is she?
That all our swains commend her?
Holy, fair, and wise is she;
The heaven such grace did lend her,
That she might admire be.

Is she kind as she is fair?
For beauty lives with kindness:
Love doth to her eyes repair,
To help him of his blindness;
And, being helped, inhabits there.

Then to Silvia let us sing,
That Silvia is excellent;
She excels each mortal thing
Upon the dull earth dwelling:
To her let us garlands bring.

CARRYING ON!
Coolidge Economy Practiced by John And Florence
As Latter Seeks Bargains

Mrs. JOHN COOLIDGE RETURNING FROM A SHOPPING TOUR

By NADYNE WYTHE
Central Press Correspondent
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30.—The famed "Coolidge economy" is being practiced in the household of the most talked-of bride and groom in the country—Mr. and Mrs. John Coolidge, who have settled down to the day-to-day business of keeping house here.

Although the daughter of the governor of Connecticut admits she knows little about cooking, grocery buying, budgets and other details of homemaking, her activities, marked by quantity buying and bargain hunting, indicate that the economy made famous by the former president of the United States has been accepted by his son and daughter-in-law.

Looks for Bargains
The bargains of the New Haven stores have attracted Mrs. Coolidge on her trips to stock her kitchen. Like many other New Haven housewives, Mrs. Coolidge strolls from counter-to-counter picking out the specials and taking advantage of cut rates. Some provisions are purchased in quantities sufficient for a week or more.

The Coolidge kitchen in the four-room apartment here is a model of modern efficiency. That it was chosen with an eye to economy as well as convenience is evident. In one corner stands a gleaming ice box where the perishable foods purchased in quantity are preserved and in which "left-overs" can be kept for later preparation into meals to tempt John when he returns from his office. A few feet removed is a white gas stove and the color scheme is carried out in a white and blue breakfast set, making the kitchen one of the most cheerful rooms in the apartment.

"As for cooking," Mrs. Coolidge told her interviewer, "I don't know much about it, but so far have gotten along all right. I cook only the simplest things, which please John because he dislikes fancy dishes."

Menus Prove Difficult
"The hardest thing is to think up menus. The trouble is there are so few things I can cook. I have a terrible time trying to find something different for each meal. I have cook books galore, but what with unpacking and settling and carrying on the routine day's work, I haven't much time for studying and books. There are menus in some of the books and I shall look them over as soon as I have a chance."

No Budget as Yet
There is as yet no family budget, Mrs. Coolidge is firm in her belief that she and her husband should live on what they earn, but she has not yet had the opportunity to find out just how much it is going to cost to operate their household and therefore she does not feel capable of budgeting their expenditures.

She is her own housekeeper, cook and maid, and in addition she drives her husband to and from his office four times a day. Which is a good-sized order for a young woman who until a few days ago never had done any housework.

"Yes I am determined to do all of my own work," Mrs. Coolidge asserted smilingly. "It really would be silly to hire a servant to help take care of four rooms."

"And John helps me, you see. He can even cook a little, in fact knows almost as much about it as I do, and he doesn't in the least mind rolling up his sleeves after dinner and helping me with the dishes. He also assists with the other work, so we get along fine."

Through the Apartment
A glance around the apartment indicates that Mrs. Coolidge has found time to do a great deal of work, despite her other activities. The rooms already have what New Englanders like to call a "home atmosphere." To be sure, the curtains had not arrived and the pictures have yet to be hung, a task in which John will be of help, but there is an orderliness about the apartment which indicates that the wife of the former president's son is going to make a good housekeeper.

The apartment is tastefully furnished and decorated. The color scheme of the living room, with its windows through which one can glimpse the apartment courtyard, is rose and blue. A luxurious oriental rug completely covers the floor. On one side of the room is a large, comfortable Winthrop desk; facing it is a davenport upholstered in soft shades of brown, while in a corner a graceful gateleg table and a comfortable arm chair, make an attractive group.

POSTMASTER URGES
COUNTY ROAD LEVY
PASSAGE AT POLLS

"No one knows better than the postmaster, who has rural carriers going out from his office, the need for good roads," declared Postmaster C. S. Frazer Wednesday in urging Greene County voters to support continuance of the two-mill county road levy for five more years at the polls November 5. The levy has been in effect ten years.

"Every business day the rural carriers ride over the routes and they come to know every bad spot, every break, every hole, as well as all the good sections of the road," Postmaster Frazer pointed out.

"From my information, I know that there are many miles of road which need new construction or repair, and I know that the public would be greatly benefitted if they would improve these roads."

"There are twenty rural routes in Greene County, where carriers experience considerable difficulty in making their deliveries, thereby slowing up delivery and adding greatly to their discomfort. There are other routes where carriers have to make long detours because roads are bad and they cannot get through in bad weather."

"The post-office department could save many hours and reduce expenses if all the roads over which carriers drive were in good or passable condition. Besides, the farmers would receive their mail more promptly. The county authorities have done splendid work, yet if our investment in roads is to be safeguarded, they must keep it."

EAST HIGH NOTES

The first game at home will be played by the East High "Cubs" when they meet Grant High School of Covington, Ky. on Cox Memorial Field Saturday, November 2 at 12:30 o'clock.

East High played its first game of the year with Covington and lost 18 to 0. The game was hard fought and better played than the score indicates. East High played a brilliant game and is hoping for revenge when it meets its opponents on the home field.

Covington will bring with them a triple threat quarterback who is really hard to stop, but East has them bested when it comes to

Mother's Fight Wins

The steadfast battle waged for nearly two years by Mrs. Josephine Kelly, above, mother of Leo Pat Kelly, killer of Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, Los Angeles society woman at Los Angeles, in one of the west's most celebrated murder cases, has been crowned with success in the final decision of the supreme court overruling the decision of a judge that Kelly must hang for first degree murder. The court, instead, reduced the crime to manslaughter and sentenced Kelly from one to ten years in prison.

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—What price alimony?
The price is plenty, because alimony is undoubtedly the costliest one-sided institution in the country. Consider the case of Gordon C. Thorne, millionaire grandson of the founder of a well-known mail-order house, who is on the road to a substantial depletion of his fortune via the alimony route.
Thorne has contributed approximately $400,000 to the support of his ex-wives. If these figures are staggering, here's an item that's flattening. Thorne has paid approximately $2,000,000 for his matrimonial ventures! The estimates are those of George L. Schein, his attorney. They include marriage, support, divorce, court fees, lawyers, and alimony.
Thirteen years ago the young millionaire took his first wife, Virginia Milner. He lost her via divorce five years later, and promised her $750 monthly alimony as long as she lived and remained single.
Wife No. 2, Helen Maginnis, beautiful Follies star, came along in 1922 and departed in 1925, $100,000 richer. Thorne waited a year before he led Ann Alston Clore to the altar. She divorced him last November, winning $30,000 alimony, payable in $2,000 installments. Both she and the ex-Follies girl have since remarried. Seven months ago Thorne again became a husband, this time to Mrs. Marian Bolin, and their marriage is apparently permanent.

Total $2,000,000
Every now and then Ex-Wife No. 1 and Ex-Wife No. 3 hail Thorne into court for an alimony accounting. Recently his mother took steps to protect his $2,000,000 trust fund against inroads of alimony. Oh, well, it probably could be worse. Ex-wives in Cook County and Chicago are entitled to only 33 1/3 per cent of a man's income.

STOCK MARKET SHOWS GAINS; CONFIDENCE BEING RESTORED

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Returning confidence in security values and the definite waning of the hysteria which has held a large portion of the country's investors in its grip for a week or more was plainly evident in the first hour of trading today.
Beginning the day with gains of 1 to 8 points, a number of the active industrial and railroad shares pushed ahead brilliantly in this period. Extra cash dividends for stockholders of United States Steel and American Can Companies were accepted as evidence of the confidence of big business leaders in the immediate future of American business and its ability to survive the terrific shock of falling prices sustained in the last two weeks.
Transactions in the first half-hour were close to 2,000,000 shares, an unusually heavy total, but 40 per cent less than in the same period yesterday. Sharp advances recorded in transactions of a few hundred shares showed that stocks were not plentiful at the price appearing on the tape.

SNOOK APPEAL TO BE HEARD WEDNESDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—A hearing relative to the appeal of Dr. James Howard Snook, 49, ex-Ohio State University professor, from his sentence to death in the electric chair, November 29, will be held in the Franklin County appellate court here this afternoon.
It will be decided whether the motion of his attorneys, which requests permission to file an appeal to the court of appeals, will be granted. According to law, an appeal from a death-sentence conviction must be filed within thirty days after the conviction itself. The lawyers of the slayer of Theora Hix allowed this time to elapse without taking any legal action.
The motion was necessitated, it is believed the attorneys will be allowed to file the appeal.

AN official South American commission reports Chesterfield's blend as the "most desirable." In the Canal Zone, that international crossroads, Chesterfield is far and away the favorite. Tourists write of deliciously fresh Chesterfields in India, or that it is the one American brand in this or that French village.
Good taste knows no frontiers. All over the world you find appreciation of Chesterfield's unchanging standard:

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

POWER FROM CONQUEST—And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about. And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all.—Luke 4:14, 15.

THE CHECKERED GAME OF LIFE

It isn't as bad a world as the first pages sometimes indicate.

It isn't as bad even as some of the stories told on the screens.

Nor is it as bad as is indicated by the novels of society or by the detective and mystery tales.

All these portray at times the abnormal things of life, the perversions and inversions of humanity. They are no more normal today than they were when set down by Shakespeare, by Milere, by Dumas, Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, Galsworthy, Conan Doyle, Sherwood Anderson, Dreiser. All these writers told of the wicked side of life, of the villains, of outraged virtue, of vicious scheming to overthrow law, decency, honor and kindness.

Too often there seems to be no plot for a day in men and women who pursue the beaten path of virtue. Too often the writer makes use of abnormality, of irregularity, of immorality, of sex laxities, of cheating and lying and murder. All the world loves a lover or a hero, but doesn't care to read much about such persons unless they do something very much out of the ordinary. The common, garden varieties of lover and hero are on every hand, but they don't break into the newspapers, the stage laws of God and man.

The persistent tendency of people is to draw conclusions without sufficient premises, to reason from an individual case to generalities. A witty Frenchman said, "All generalizations are wrong including this one." This is a good thing to remember when tempted to pessimism by the reports of vice and crime and scandal presented by the press, movies and books. Read your newspapers for the worth while things offered by it; there are decent plays and there are wholesome books and magazines; there is good music, uplifting art, both in pictures and literature. One cannot avoid knowing something of the seamy side of life, but after all it is not the side that is intended to be seen, whether of a garment or of a life. If one is interested in the submerged part of humanity, in the men and women of the slums, in the crooks both in high and low society, let him look upon them as phenomena of nature, as specimens to be examined by sociologists, criminologists and psychologists. They are not typical of human kind.

'T WASN'T FAIR TO ASK THEM

Somebody who couldn't have had much of importance on his mind recently sent out a questionnaire to the Princeton freshmen asking them to designate the most essential quality in the ideal girl." All except 65 of the 490 youngsters approached were "easy and tried to reply. Naturally their limited experiences with life prevented them from concocting any real answers. For the essential quality in an ideal girl, as any individual of the male sex views her, is an ability to make that particular male individual fall, and fall hard, and like it, no matter how badly it hurts. Naturally the average freshman would never suspect anything like that, and least of all a freshman of the "sophisticated" type.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Cantor, the local pride of hereabout, mounted the hustings in Longacre Square a night or two ago to hurl verbiage intended to aid the candidacy of his friend, Jimmy Walker.

"I don't know anything about politics," quoth the Inimitable Edward, "but at odd moments in my life I have delved into the constitution of the United States and all documents, and in none of these have I been able to find any prohibition whereby the mayor of the city of New York is deprived of his inalienable right to wisecrack and wear creased trousers."

Eddie may know nothing of politics. But he does know his Longacre Square, Yassam!

GERSHWIN'S CAREER

George Gershwin, composer of "Rhapsody in Blue," began life as the son of poor, Jewish parents in the not-so-artistic surroundings of Grand Street, where, to use his own phrase, he was "the toughest kid on the block." At 17 he threw up a promising career as book-keeper and stalked off to Broadway. His first job there was song-plugger, at $15 a week and experience, not satisfied with hanging out other people's tunes he wrote music for himself in his spare time. At 25 he was the unquestioned king of Tin Pan Alley and without relinquishing that crown has since become the darling of even the musical intellectuals. Now, at 31, he has turned his back on

Mazda Lane to write a full-length grand opera, based on "The Dybbuk," at the request of Otto Kahn, chairman of the Metropolitan Board.

TRUE ENOUGH, BROTHER!

Mack was "moanin' low" to Moran about his bad luck picking winners at the race track.

"How come you always lose at the races and always win when you play cards?" queried the logical-minded Moran.

"Dawg-gone, boy," replied The Other Black Crow, "that's simple. I don't shuffle 'th horses!"

NOW BE GOOD, CHRIS!

Chris Morley, whose audiences at his Hoboken theatre have been encouraged to add to their own entertainment by cheering the heroes and throwing peanuts at the ends of the revived mid-Victorian melodramas, is coming in for a lot of criticism from play folk who feel that the Litty Lad, turned showman, isn't "playing the game." Jane Cow, the actress, took a fling at him the other day.

"Morley's project," says Jane, "though it may have started in fun, is an incubator for bad manners in the theater. What New York audiences need is encouragement to behave themselves. Even the fashionable theater party, coming in during the second act, can be shamed out of existence with enough criticism and comment from intelligent theatergoers."

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHAT THEN?

A hundred years from now somebody in Fitchburg, Mass., will open a vault near the World war memorial and will take out some letters. The letters, written by President Hoover, Governor Allen, and other men in public life, have just been buried—to be taken up in the year 2029.

This will be very interesting to readers in 2029, but perhaps not important or valuable. Nobody can write much today and be sure it will have any point a hundred years hence. The world moves too fast for that. Problems come and go. Ideas and conditions change. In fact, the hope of civilization lies in a changing world, not a static world.

RETIRING

Geraldine Farrar, noted opera star, tells the world she will retire when she is 50. She has less than three years to go. Retirement is fine, if you know when. Nobody should retire to be idle. When retirement means devoting your best energies to doing something you particularly want to do, and which it is not possible for you to do in your routine job, then retirement ought to come as soon as you can arrange it. Probably Miss Farrar is unwise, as anybody else would be, to announce a definite date of retirement. Who knows now whether the best time will be at 50 or 60 or 70—or ever?

FADS THAT FADE

A headline tells us that "stockingless fad fades as teachers ignore style."

Teachers who ignore styles are wise. Giving undue attention to the trivialities of style and dress and fads in school gives them an importance which they do not deserve. Fads become issues. The whole town can easily become stirred up. Ignoring a fad is the best way to kill it.

SENSIBLE

An English woman, traveling on a fast train, pulled the emergency cord and stopped the train. She explained she wanted to stop and have a cup of tea. Sounds silly. So railroad officials thought. The poor lady doubtless will have to pay a fine. At least, she gets a fine reprimand. Yet she did what most of us would like to do, and what we all ought to do. Why not stop and have a cup of tea? We take the fastest possible train to save a half hour which we do not know how to use after we have saved it.

AMENDMENTS STRENGTHENING ALIEN DEPORTATION LAWS URGED

By WILLIAM P. HOLADAY
Congressman from Illinois
William P. Holaday was born at Ridgefarm, Ill., Dec. 14, 1882. He attended the University of Missouri and the University of Illinois. In 1905 he began his law practice at Danville, Ill. From 1909 to 1923 he was a member of the Illinois house of representatives. He was elected to congress in 1923 from the eighteenth Illinois district, and has been returned each term since. He is a Republican.

I think congress could strengthen the laws now on the statute books relating to undesirable aliens and enforcement of their deportation.

Just what amendments may be offered I cannot say at this time. It remains for the future to determine, in the light of the latest data available in the hands of the department of labor.

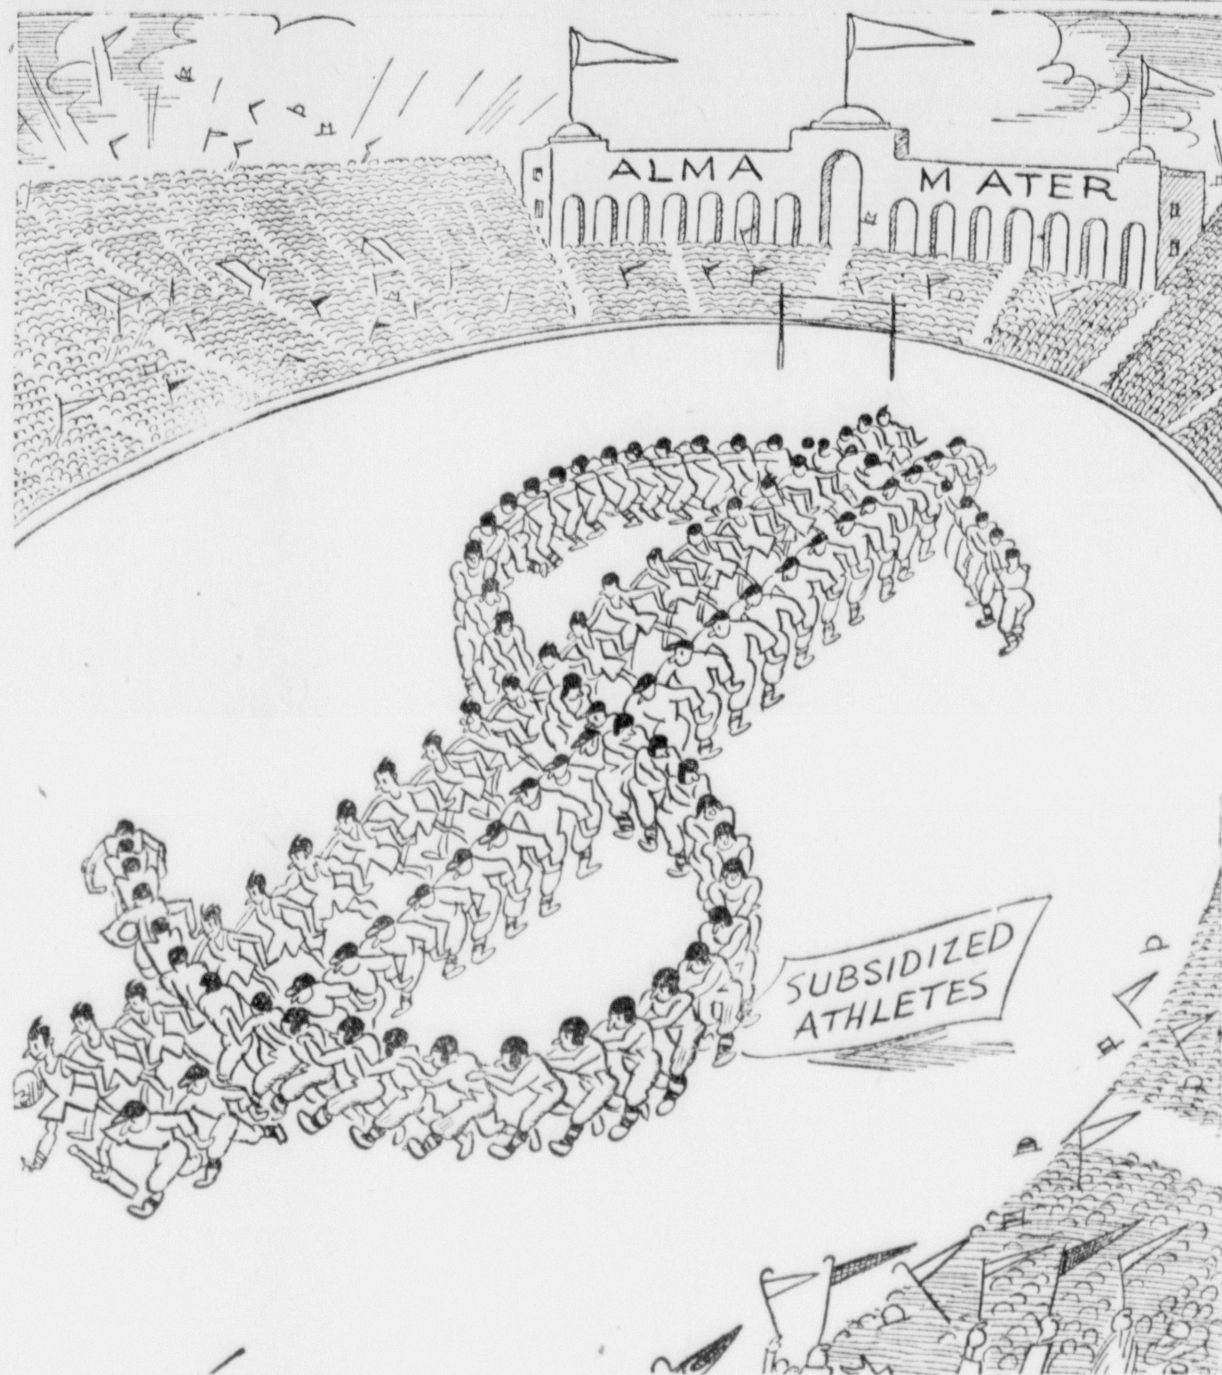

It always has been impossible to determine the real number of deportable aliens in the United States. I have never personally had any idea that there are as many as some have estimated. The estimates of those deportable for one reason or another under the present law run as high as 4,000,000. I doubt if there are that many properly coming under the category of deportable undesirable aliens.

I firmly believe that provisions of existing law not only have permitted the states to rid themselves of alien criminals who would have been public charges and a burden on the states, but that the law has proven a strong influence for the good on aliens generally. I believe the existing law has proven a deterrent to crime. I have heard of some particular cases of aliens who have been reformed and intend to be law-abiding citizens because of the fear of being deported from the United States.

I am convinced that the restrictive immigration law of July 1, 1924, a permanent statute, is as important as any law that congress has enacted for many years. It has kept out the excess of foreign labor and has been a god send to American labor. I am studying the operations of this permanent restrictive immigration act.

I expect to make a speech in the house, either in the last part of this session or early in the regular session, dealing with the way in which this law has worked out during these five years. I am going over the records of the administration of the law and other data in this connection to ascertain the real measure of its success.

THE SNAKE DANCE

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I have purposefully begun with this strenuous system, because many women who have not exercised for a long time find it unwise to go back to exercise via too vigorous a route. The system is also good for the woman of delicate health who cannot indulge in the more violent forms of calisthenics, but we still want some means of stretching her limbs.

The whole system is built around the principle of expansion and contraction, and the laws of specific gravity and equilibrium. You can stand perfectly still, with your arms outstretched, contracting your back. You then draw your shoulders in from the arm sockets and expand. All motion must begin from the source, or joints. For instance, if you want to do arm circling to straighten your back and to give you an erect carriage, you must stretch out your arms for arm circling. You move the upper arm at the socket in your shoulder, paying no attention to the actual movements of your hands, but permitting the motion of the shoulders to move your entire arms. In the same manner the hips are exercised by moving the upper body in a rotary movement at the hip joints. The legs and thighs are made limber by a swinging and rotary movement of the entire limb from the hip joint. The women who take this course are taught to exercise their abdominal muscles independently. This is a difficult exercise and requires expert teaching.

However, from this school there emanate some of the less rigorous exercises which every woman can do in her own home. Just going through the elementary movements of pulling a rope or of imitating the movements of a cat stretching can do much to take the kinks out of an inactive body.

The important factor in doing these comparatively simple exercises is regularity, for it is only after a certain amount of time has elapsed, that they are truly beneficial. This is one of the very new schools of body building.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—"Cherchez la femme," is the French sleuth's motto whenever a crime puzzles him. "Hunt for the woman."

"Look for the official connection," is the rule in Washington. It is a rule which makes detective work particularly thrilling in the District of Columbia. The Capital hawkshaw never knows into how extraordinary a sensation his investigation of the most ordinary-looking case may lead him.

For example, who would have supposed that the recent death, under rather mysterious circumstances, of 22 or 23-year-old Virginia McPherson, a little trained nurse of not the slightest social consequence, would have set the whole machinery of the justice department in motion caused an upheaval in the police department and started a senatorial inquiry which promises an indefinite number of a ramifications and may extend half a dozen years into past history?

It did—with questions of murder, suicide, liquor, narcotics, oil, heaven knows what all to be brooded—

Virginia McPherson was the wife of Robert A. McPherson, Jr., a young bank clerk.

The couple had separated and decided to part forever—not on violently bad terms; mere incompatibility. Young McPherson visited his wife's apartment one evening in mid-September to discuss a final settlement between them; left rather late, with their conversation not quite completed; called in the morning to finish it, and found Virginia dead on the floor, strangled with her own pajama cord.

"Evidently a suicide," was the police verdict. Maybe it was a suicide, to be sure. Nevertheless, many folk were suspicious. Among them was Senator Lee S. Overman, representing Virginia's home state of North Carolina.

Perhaps of its own initiative, perhaps spurred to unusual activity by Senator Overman's protests, the grand jury went deep into the case. The police stood by their suicide theory. The district attorney's office upheld them.

For all that, the grand jury indicted Robert McPherson, with a charge denunciation of the police investigators' attitude.

Just about his time Senator Robert B. Howell of Nebraska had been exhorting the District of Columbia authorities for lax prohibition enforcement—another thrust at the police department.

While this subject was still a throbbing live one, Dexter Dayton, a young insurance agent, maddened by drink, strangled Marjorie O'Donnell, a girl he was courting, in a room at a fashionable Washington hotel, and promptly surrendered, pleading only that whisky, rather than he, should be blamed for one of the most atrocious murders in the capital's history.

Meanwhile further inquiry into the McPherson tragedy had been taken out of the hands of the district attorney's office, inasmuch as it was committed to the suicide hypothesis, and turned over to the justice department.

On the heels of this development came a demand from Virginia relatives of the late Detective Arthur Scriener of the Washington police, killed by a pistol shot in 1926, and virtually set down as a suicide, though nominally carried on the records as an assassination.

Two doubtful suicide cases instantly recalled to mind a third—that of former Attorney General J. M. Daugherty's pal, Jess Smith, found shot to death and accounted for as self-slain in 1923, on the eve of the oil scandals which so soon afterward were to shock the entire country.

Press references to Jess Smith and the petroleum scandals automatically recalled memories of the case of Barney A. McBride, Oklahoma, who arrived in the capital in 1922 to confer with government officials concerning certain never fully explained oil questions and subsequently was found dead in a Maryland ditch just beyond the District of Columbia line.

He had been shot and no one ever disputed that he was murdered, but the cause's motive never was satisfactorily explained. The police version was that petty thieves were responsible for the killing; popular opinion quite generally associated the affair, in some way, with oil transactions.

While all this ancient history was being resurrected, Senator Blease had added his contribution to the accumulation of complaints relative to the Washington authorities' administration.

The narcotic trade is rampant in the city, he asserted on the senate floor—and responsible, he surmised, for several unpunished murders.

Naturally his accusation instantly raised the query:

"Could the McPherson case have had a drug angle?"

"A nurse! Possibly brought into professional contact with narcotic addicts or peddlers! Had she learned enough, by any chance, to be dangerous?"

The guess, anyhow, is being taken into account in the investigation.

It was Senator Blease's resolution which launched the inquiry. As previously observed, he is a great criminal lawyer. With Senator Sackett on the bench, so to speak, and their fellow senatorial committee members sitting around as a jury, Blease will do the probing.

He is not after the police so much, he tells us—he is particularly after the "higher ups" who have managed the department these last few years.

Menu Hint

Veal and Ham Pie
Stewed Tomatoes
Waldorf Salad
New England Pandowdy
Coffee
Who doesn't like a meat pie? Try this old-fashioned recipe and see if the family—and friends, if you happen to have guests—won't cheer.

Today's Recipes

Veal and Ham Pie—One pound lean veal, one cup ham, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, one teaspoon chopped parsley, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two and one-half cups water, two tablespoons butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour, two hard cooked eggs, pastry. Cut the veal and ham into small pieces and add to them the parsley, lemon rind, salt, pepper and water. Simmer very slowly for an hour, or until the meat is tender. Thicken with the butter and flour rubbed smoothly together, and fill a baking dish with the meat and gravy. Add the eggs, sliced, and cover with good short biscuit crust. Bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven, or until the crust is baked through.

New England Pandowdy—Two cups tart apples, pared and cored, one cup sugar, two teaspoons water, nutmeg or cinnamon, baking powder crust. Fill a greased baking dish full of the apples, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon or nutmeg, add the water and cover with a biscuit crust. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit), until the short cake is thoroughly baked and the fruit tender, about 25 minutes.

CHOWDER IS A WHOLE MEAL
Vegetable Chowder
Two medium onions, one stalk celery one sprig parsley, two carrots, two potatoes, two tomatoes, one cup corn, two quarts meat stock, salt, pepper, one-eighth teaspoon celery salt, three slices salt pork bacon, diced; four milk or soda crackers, rolled; one-fourth cup butter or salt pork fat. Melt butter or try out salt pork, and cook vegetables, except potatoes, in this, over a low fire, five minutes. Add stock, cook slowly ten minutes. Add potatoes and cook until tender. Season to taste and serve.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverb.
"Dear Doctor: Our four-year-old daughter has two teeth (the front incisors) that are beginning to show decay, but the dentist would not fix them because he said they would soon come out and it didn't pay to fill them. What do you advise?"
MRS. S."

I think you have gone to a dentist who is not keeping up with the advances in medicine and dentistry. Mrs. S. The idea that because the first teeth will soon fall out, they needn't have any attention, was found to be wrong years ago.

There are several reasons why the first teeth DO need attention.

1. If the first teeth are decayed, they usually are painful and prevent the child from chewing his food. This may cause nutritional upsets.

2. These decayed teeth are full of pus germs, which may be transmitted by the blood stream and settle on the heart valves and joints, etc., causing serious trouble.

3. The permanent teeth, being directly under the first teeth, may become infected and decay almost as soon as they appear.

4. Unless the first teeth are filled and cared for they may be so painful that they either have to be extracted by a dentist, or the child works on them himself until they are loose enough to pull out. (Can't you remember how we used to spend time re-sawing the loose tooth back and forth?) This premature loss of teeth may cause the permanent teeth to come in irregularly, so the child has crooked teeth, and it also may cause the jaws to develop improperly.

5. If the child is taken regularly to the dentist, at least once in six months, beginning cavities can be filled when they are tiny, without any pain.

6. The habits that the child acquires in caring for his first teeth are going to be carried on with his permanent teeth, and through life in fact. Going to the dentist will make him realize, more than anything else, the importance of his teeth, and therefore the need of the proper cleansing and the proper diet to furnish them the needed elements. The diet that makes for good teeth is also the diet for the best growth and development of the other organs of the body.

I'll add here that this diet includes three to four glasses of milk for time and phosphorus and complete protein; two ounces or so more protein food (building and repair)—eggs, flesh food, cheese—whose grain cereals and breads, raw fruits and vegetables (for vitamins, mineral elements and bulk), and some cooked vegetables as well. The hard crusts of the bread and the raw fruits and vegetables will also provide exercise for the jaws and teeth, which is a large factor in the development of the jaws.

Now you can anticipate from what I have written what I'll advise, Mrs. S. It is to take your little girl to a dentist who keeps up in his profession.

We have a list of books on the general care and feeding of children, which you will find helpful. See column rules for obtaining this.

Mrs. T.—Your questions on the Menopause (change of life) are answered in our pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A burnt child dreads the fire, they say. If that's the case, wouldn't you think one who had been scorched by the heat of an unhappy marriage would be doubly cautious of getting burnt again in the same way?

It does not always follow, however according to the following letter.

"My Dear Virginia Lee: I want to thank you for giving me an answer to my other letter and now I want more advice."

"I am 22 and go with a fellow one year older. He gave me an engagement ring just a week ago. Of course I know a fellow has more claim on a girl than, but why should he get so and decent like her to go places and make rather do nothing but sit at home?"

"I feel that we should have our good times now and be ready to settle down. He thinks we should save every penny now, and then in the future have a good time."

"Virginia, I have been married once and I know how cruel life can be if you can't have your good times before you are married. We went to a dance the other night and he got terribly sulky and was peevish at me the rest of the evening. Please advise me."

"GOLDBLOCKS!"
Your letter was too long for all of it to be printed. Goldlocks, so I just put in the most important parts. I can't see that you did anything at all to make the young man sulky and angry, and I don't believe that you can expect much happiness through a marriage with him.

As you have had one unhappy experience you should be doubly careful of another matrimonial venture. I believe in having good times both before and after marriage, but of course young people are more apt to be tied down after marriage, so it is usually wise to have a lot of fun while you're free, if you can have it without spending too much money.

Of course, an engaged couple wants to save as much as possible towards home expenses. I think, if I were you, I would be in no hurry to marry this young man. Be sure he is not going to sulk and be peevish at every little thing after you are married. Better a little suffering now in giving him up, than marry him and be unhappy.

WONDERING BROWN EYED PEGGY: Ask the boy friend to the party if you like, Peggy. If he doesn't come to see you any more himself, surely he has no right to expect to hold you to your promise not to go with other fellows. If he doesn't come to the party and act

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

BURIED ALIVE

"What under the sun is the Order of the Sacred Beetle?" asked Peter. "It sounds interesting. What will I have to do to belong? And would a boy be welcome?" But Lady-Bug had no chance to answer, for at this moment a shrill voice screamed:

"Rose, Rose, come here quick! I have fallen into the tree and I can't get out!"

Rose Beetle proved a regular Johnny-on-the-spot. Dashing madly through the crowd and upsetting a small beetle or two in his hurry, he ran towards his fellow creature in distress, tumbling headlong over a pebble that lay in his path. By the time he had picked himself up the cries had grown weaker, but Rose knew exactly where they had come from. Without a moment's hesitation he crawled straight to the trunk of an old tree.

"Dear me, I am afraid Rose can't get her out in time," moaned Lady-Bug.

as if he cared, go with others and do your best to forget him, dear.

BROWN EYED SALLY: Let there some way you can prove to your parents that the thing they heard about your boy friend is untrue. They must be absolutely convinced that he is guilty or they would not forbid you to have anything more to do with him. Try to think of some way you can vindicate your friend and then your parents will have to live in and let you see him.

EUGENE: It looks as if the little girl was not ready to be anybody's sweetheart, doesn't it? Why be angry with her for that? She would probably count you as her BEST friend. I think you should make up with her and be good friends as long as possible. Later, as you go to college or to work your time, you not be close together, so why spoil good times by being cross and not speaking?

BROKEN HEARTED SUSIE: What becomes of the wife in cases you and her husband go off together and you take care of the children? Does she keep her husband, home and children? Maybe life would not mean a great deal to her in that case. You can hardly blame her for not wanting to divorce him and giving up the children or in caring for them herself all alone, can you?

Can you imagine yourself giving your husband up under the circumstances? I say, very emphatically, no matter what it costs you, you should keep him out of your life and encourage him to be true to his wife and family.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I'm a sophomore in college and in love with a boy and he is in love with me. I like to go out to dances with other boys, but he objects. My mother will not allow me to go steady. We have quarreled about this and I'm afraid I'm losing his love. Please help me."

"WEARY CO-ED:"
If you love him so, dear, why do you wish to hurt his feelings by going to dances with other boys? And why doesn't your mother want you to go steady with your boy friend? Is she afraid you will want to marry before your education is finished?

If his love means more to you than anything else you will give up your other friends, but I do not know if that would be very wise, unless you overcome your mother's objections and contemplate marriage in the future.

Bug, close at Rose's heels, but Grass-Green reproved her. him. Only let us keep out of each other's way. Everybody! Stop your pushing."

body! Stop your pushing." "I wonder how deep she has fallen in?" questioned the Beetles of each other. And Staggy added:

"Yes, and how much wood has fallen on top of her?"

"Do tell me what the matter is?" asked puzzled Peter. And Staggy answered:

"Poor Mrs. Rose Beetle has tumbled into the tree trunk and gotten buried under the bark, and unless we can dig her out she'll never play in this garden any more. Keep close behind me if you want to watch me help my chum pull his wife out of the mess."

Stagg Beetle set to work and dug up the earth, scattering the dirt and clouds that made a Peter and would have buried him if he had not sidestepped.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

Things are not going well with Xenia Central High School's football team at all. Coach "Pinky" Wilson's campaign has been beset with difficulties. He has had whole-sale injuries and the loss of first class material to buck. The available letter men can be counted on two fingers. Although the Bucs made a good start by winning their first game none of the rest of the games have been so good. However, a win over Greenville Friday afternoon would enable Xenia grid-ers to feel that they were on their feet again. Greenville's team is not going places fast this season either, it being an off year in football for both schools, and we here with predict that the chain of four straight defeats will be severed by Bucs Friday at Cox Field. It is the duty of Xenia fans to turn out for the game and stick by the team in times of stress as well as in time of prosperity.

The spotlight of public attention focuses this week end on the South once more. Florida invades Harvard and Notre Dame visits Georgia Tech. All of the four teams are highly representative teams and among the best produced this season. Tech's only hope for victory, however, over the teaming riders is to catch the Irish in a slump. Notre Dame has played and won four strenuous games in succession and it may have an off day Saturday. When the team is at its best it is practically unbeatable, being well fortified with speed, power and aggressiveness, offensively and defensively.

Harvard is an odds-on favorite to beat Florida just as Tech will be the underdog, but upsets have been so numerous each week that there is no telling what may happen. Both Southern teams have a wealth of backfield talent. Where the hitch comes in, however, is in the line. The line of a football team is all-important. Without a sturdy line the backs can go nowhere. That is where the weakness of the Southern teams will be found.

"I wouldn't take the pot if it were offered me."

That is how Jimmy Wilson, star catcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, disposed of a report that he was to be made manager of the Cardinals.

"It's all a big joke to me," Wilson said. "I don't know anything about it. No one has ever taken the matter up with me. I do expect to be back with the Cardinals next season as catcher again, and sure hope for a big year."

Wilson, who formerly was with the Philadelphia National League club and lives in the northern part of that city, returned to his home Monday night from New York where he played with a number of other big league stars in an exhibition game Sunday.

Vern L. Faltes, local insurance agent and champion golfer of the Xenia Country Club, makes his debut this week as a football expert. Vern is trying his hand at picking winners of twenty-two of the hardest collegiate football games scheduled for next Saturday and hopes to boost the season's percentage of local fans in forecasting winners. Vern is a former Central High athletic coach. The percentage has been slipping lately and could stand a little boosting. Here is a list of Vern's predictions:

Cornell to beat Columbia.
Ohio Wesleyan to beat Denison.
Detroit to beat Marquette.
Notre Dame to beat Georgia Tech.
Harvard to beat Florida.
Brown to beat Holy Cross.
Minnesota to beat Indiana.
New York U. to beat Georgetown.
Illinois to beat Northwestern.
Ohio U. to beat Miami.
Pennsylvania to beat Navy.
Pittsburgh to beat Ohio State.
Princeton to beat Chicago.
S. California to beat California.
Penn State to beat Syracuse.
Army to beat South Dakota.
Wash. and Jeff. to beat Lafayette.

X. Xavier to beat West. Reserve.
Purdue to beat Wisconsin.
Wittenberg to beat Cincinnati.
Oberlin to beat Wooster.
Yale to beat Dartmouth.

DECISIVE VICTORY OVER NEBRASKAN IS CAPTURED BY CHAMP

Only Courage Keeps Challenger On Feet At Finish

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 30.—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion held his title today after successfully defending it last night, by decisively thrashing Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, in all but one of the ten rounds.

The challenger was beaten at every angle and only his courage kept him on his feet at the finish. His nose was askew, one eye closed, blood pouring from nose and mouth and lips swollen, Hudkins kept pling into the final second.

"Come on and fight! Walker!" he would mumble through the swollen bleeding lips. And again he would say: "Is that your hardest punch, Walker?"

Jack Kennedy, referee, said Hudkins had one round, the eighth, three were even and Walker had the other six.

It was in the seventh round that two hard right-hand punches to Walker's chin had the champion staggering, but like the champion that he is, Mickey cut loose in desperation, having Hudkins on the wing at the ring.

From almost every angle Walker proved himself the master boxer, the more adroit ringman, the craftier general and handled himself beautifully in the face of a rugged attack.

For once the prophets ran true to form in almost everything they had predicted. There was not a loafing minute in the entire thirty. Hudkins fought as he always fights, as he always will fight, because he knows no other style—take them keep coming and maybe catch the bird on the wing. Walker was cool and collected throughout against Hudkins' rushing, mauling wrestling tactics, he showed the defense of a champion.

Walker absolutely nullified Hudkins most potent asset—the kidney punch—because he kept his elbows working over time and when the proper moment arrived he would shove Hudkins away and bring into existence his snappy right uppercut that had Hudkins befuddled and battered from the second round out.

Walker showed the result of splendid conditioning with his coolness, plentitude of wind and speed. He was on his toes always. His defensive skill was never called in to stronger play because probably he never needed it more than against this unorthodox manlier who likes to bore in and jolt with short jerky body punches, mixed with swings for the kidneys. Walker proved up, but in defeat you had to love the tumbled Hudkins.

BUCKLEY EXPECTED TO BEGIN SENTENCE AT ATLANTA FRIDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—Bert B. Buckley, 55, ex-state treasurer, who was sentenced to serve two years and six months in the Atlanta penitentiary after his conviction on charges of attempted bribery and conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, will probably start doing his "stretch" in the federal prison sometime Friday.

According to United States Marshal Stanley Borthwick, Buckley will surrender himself to the official tomorrow afternoon in Cincinnati. Borthwick said that Buckley and approximately twenty-five other prisoners would be taken to the southern penal institution on the train which leaves Cincinnati tomorrow night at 8:40 o'clock.

The "prison train" will arrive in Atlanta sometime Friday morning and then Buckley, once the treasurer of the Buckeye state, will be "mugged" and "finger-printed" and incarcerated in the bastille which will be his home for two and one-half years.

This marks the climax of the career of the former highly-respected state official. At his trial in Columbus, he was convicted by a jury of twelve men for his alleged connection with the then famous Cincinnati "beer-brewery-bribery" scandal.

It was alleged that Buckley attempted to bribe John F. Eckhart, then acting prohibition commissioner of Ohio and Indiana, Eckhart or Ohio and Indiana.

Youngest Air Student

So far as records show, Lawrence Eck, 12, of San Diego, Cal., is the youngest aviation student in the United States. He is learning ground flying since governmental regulations prevent anyone under 16 years of age from piloting an airplane.

CHAMPION RETAINS HIS TITLE

DESPERATE BUCCANEERS ARE HOPING TO BEAT GREENVILLE

By PHIL FRAME

INDICATIONS are that a revamped and possibly a rejuvenated Xenia Central High School football team will take the field Friday afternoon in the third Miami Valley League game of the season against Greenville High at Cox Athletic Field.

The Bucs are a desperate and a determined lot this week and if a victory over Greenville is not forthcoming it will not be because the team did not try its utmost to win. The squad was cheered to a great extent by the return of Kinsey to practice this week. Kinsey, one of the best linemen available this season, has been suffering from a shoulder injury but may return to the starting lineup Friday, or at least break into the contest at some time or other.

Coach "Pinky" Wilson is understood to be considering a few changes in the lineup designed to bolster up the line without weakening the backfield. It is possible that Joe Smittle may be transferred from fullback to center, a position he has been accustomed to playing for several years, and Howard Thompson shifted from end to the backfield. Thompson, one of the mid-season "finds" at Central, looked good as a back one night in practice this week and such a change might be all to the advantage of the Bucs as Smittle would strengthen the line considerably.

Followers of the Buccaneer eleven are convinced that most of the bad football in the squad has been lost for good and that succeeding games will witness nothing but improvement all along the line.

Yearly competition in football is gradually building up a friendly rivalry between Xenia and Greenville and observers are of the opinion that a victory over the invaders Friday seems probable providing the team can restore to itself a measure of lost confidence.

The fact that Xenia has lost four straight games by emphatic scores should not be held against the Bucs. Every school with a small enrollment has a poor football season every so often and Xenia was especially hard hit this fall with graduation sadly depleting the ranks of experienced players.

With only two letter men back around which to build a team, Coach Wilson faced and is still facing one of the most difficult assignments in the school's history. He has had to recall a similar season in recent years that the material has been lacking to such a degree.

Under these circumstances the Bucs are doing as well as could be expected and with the players gaining new experience every week it is entirely likely that future games this season will find Xenia a vastly improved team in all departments.

Friday's contest will start at 3 o'clock. The officials are: Harry Cutler, referee; A. E. Sauer, umpire, and Moier, head linesman. Both Xenia and Greenville have lost two league games this season and their game this week will provide each school with an opportunity to hang up a league victory for the first time. A tie game would be unsatisfactory to both teams. However, for the last two seasons Greenville and Xenia have fought to a draw.

MANY BARGAINS IN STOCKS SAYS RASKOB

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—"My friends and I are all buying stocks. The list is now filled with bargains."

John J. Raskob, political and industrial leader, made this assertion today.

"Nearly all the standard railroad stocks are cheap," he added.

He expressed the opinion that the recent decline will have only a temporary effect on general business conditions.

Raskob declared that prudent investors are now buying stocks in huge quantities and that they "will profit handsomely when this hysteria is over."

ARRESTED HERE FOR MANSFIELD POLICE

Fred J. Martin, 21, colored, taxi driver, arrested by police Tuesday night, is being held at Police Headquarters pending the arrival of authorities from Mansfield, O., where he will be returned to face prosecution on an affidavit charging him with passing a worthless check for $5 last October 5. Police received a warrant for his arrest and officers are expected to arrive in Xenia to return the suspect to Mansfield Thursday. Martin, police say, operates a taxi between Xenia and Wilberforce.

BRYAN MAYOR DIES

BRYAN, O., Oct. 30.—A nervous breakdown, which was believed to have been superinduced by the death of his wife in an automobile accident this spring, today had caused the death of one of Bryan's most prominent citizens, Mayor O. H. Wiley.

BUCCANEER SECOND TEAM WILL TACKLE HOME SECONDS HERE

Xenia Central High School's "Little Buccaneers," a squad of eighth grade and freshmen football candidates, who have been practicing industriously for the last ten days under Assistant Coach Glen Patterson absorbing all the knowledge they can of the rudiments of the game, will have their first opportunity to demonstrate in practice Thursday afternoon what they have learned in theory.

A practice game has been arranged for the yearlings with the reserve team of the O. S. and S. O. Home on the Home gridiron late Thursday afternoon. The game will start about 4:30 o'clock or a little earlier if possible.

The squad includes about twenty players and a number of the candidates have shown exceptional ability in work-outs which have been in progress for ten days. Patterson has been assisted in the last few days by John Gibney, former Xenia Central star athlete, who recently returned home from Cleveland after recovering from a severe illness.

One week from Thursday the Xenia seconds will play a game with the combined eighth grade and freshmen of Oakwood High School at Dayton. A return game with the O. S. and S. O. Home reserves will also be played later in the season.

The probable starting lineup for the "Little Bucs" in Friday's game includes M. Hyman and Foley at ends, Blangy and Luttrell at tackles, Harner and Storer at guards, Smith at center, Adair at quarter, Dalton and Stiles at halves and Baker, acting captain and fullback. Others who will probably break into the game are Flste at end, Acton at tackle and T. Huston at halfback.

Organization of an eighth and ninth grade football team at Xenia Central is designed to give the boys a chance to learn the fundamentals of the game so that when and if they become candidates for the high school team in later years they will not be entirely inexperienced. A large number of other schools have adopted the idea and it has been proven that better high school teams are usually produced.

Virgil Jenkins, 20, prisoner in the County Jail, who was recently bound over to the grand jury on a charge of burglary and larceny, is wanted at Vero Beach, Fla., for highway robbery, according to a telegram received by police from Sheriff C. S. Rice of the Southern city. No particulars of the case were given. However, and police expect to question Jenkins in the hope of learning details.

Jenkins confessed to being implicated with two other youths in an attempt to steal a 400-pound safe containing $200 from the "Baseball Smokery," 11½ E. Main St., a week ago.

“They work while you sleep”

Cascara — the Perfect Laxative

Now, when the end of the day finds you feeling out of sorts; and the most tempting foods hold no enjoyment, just chew a candy tablet before bed-time. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

You'll awake with that coating gone from your tongue. "Breath will be sweetened; eyes brightened; you'll feel like doing things right, instead of just getting by."

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, headachy, constipated condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion and assimilation. You sleep right on while Cascarets are preparing your system for a thorough cleansing in the morning. Never a bit of sickening or discomfort when Cascarets are used.

Cascarets are a pure vegetable product, made from Cascara Sagrada, a substance which authorities above doubting, say actually strengthens the bowel muscles. That's why you can take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. Every action of Cascarets is helpful. They are a blessing to old folks!

Full medical endorsement proves their principle is right; 20 million packages used a year shows how people like them!

AUTOMATIC DEVICE PROMISES "FOOL-PROOF" FLYING

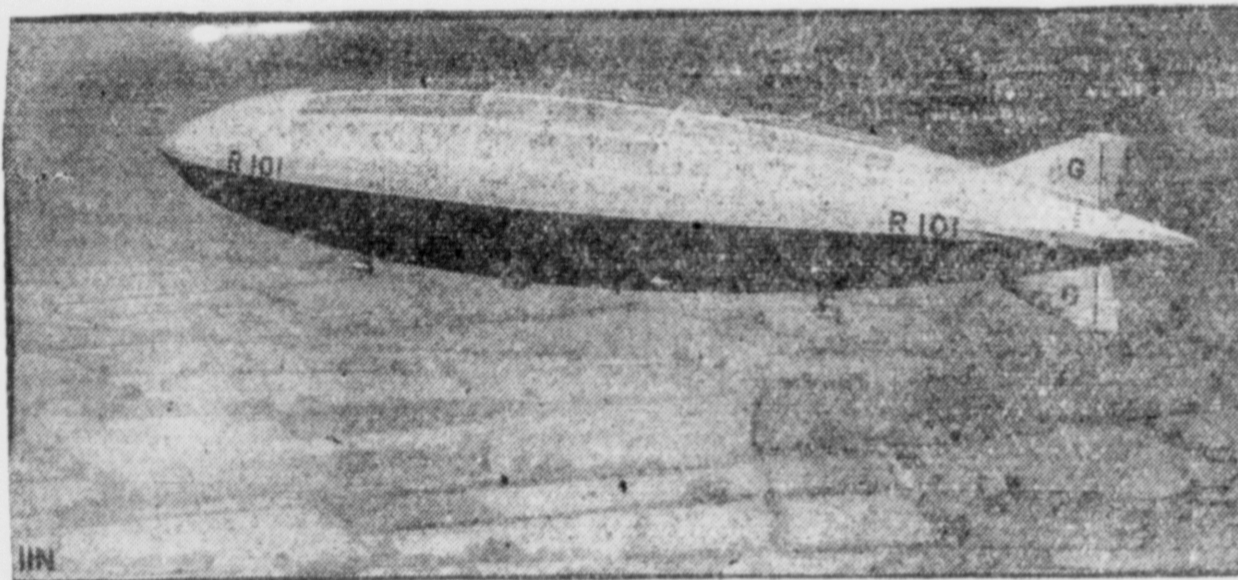

"Fool proof" flying is at last believed to have been achieved by Dr. C. H. Vance, of Pomona, Cal., following successful test flights of his newly perfected automatic stabilizers at Los Angeles. The device, shown here being inspected by Dr. Vance after the flight, consists of two automatic controls, one for lateral stability to prevent skidding, side-slipping and falling off on one wing, and the other for fore-and-aft stability, to keep the ship in level flight without attention on the part of the pilot.

TWO ARRESTED IN BOOTLEG KILLING

CANTON, O., Oct. 30.—Two men were held here today charged with suspicion following their stories of the killing of James Dennis, alias James Kourakis, last night. Police blame a local bootleg war for the slaying.

Steve Stevens, 34, and Nick Brown, 37, are the men held. Stevens told police that Dennis and a man named Anthony De- bella, 21, entered the room in which he and Brown were sleeping, with drawn guns. Stevens said he fired from his bed, hitting Dennis.

Police found three loaded revolvers and five discharged shells on the porch of Stevens' home after the killing. Two more loaded guns were found inside the house.

VERDICT UPHELD

Appeal of L. O. Clemmer, Xenia, dairyman, from a judgment of the Greene County courts which found him guilty of illegally refilling registered milk bottles belonging to John Ringer, Xenia, was rejected Wednesday by the Ohio Supreme Court, which upheld the decision of the lower courts. The case involved an alleged violation of the state law dealing with the labeling and branding of milk bottles.

TOBACCO SALE INCREASE

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 30.—An increase of nearly three million dollars in tobacco sales was shown in comparison of this year's transactions in the state with last year's, according to an announcement by the commissioner of agriculture.

SAYS BUSINESS SOUND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Public and business anxiety over the crash in stocks was reflected today by a flood of telegrams received at the White House, the treasury, the federal reserve board, and other governmental agencies.

Thus far the only step taken by the administration, however, has been to permit Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, to go on the air with a speech extolling the basic soundness of the business structure.

O H, listen, girls! Rudy Vallee has "gone radio" for a year.

The national jazz idol with the crooning tenor voice is now heard by a national audience each Thursday evening from 8 to 9 p. m. E. S. T., on a national advertising program.

The broadcast is from station WEAF, New York and a coast-to-coast hook-up which includes station WSAI, Cincinnati. Rudy was unknown a year ago. Now he sets feminine hearts a-fluttering all the way and back.

FARM BUREAU CHIEF ATTACKS PROPOSED TAX MEASURE HERE

"As I see the proposed tax amendment it is misleading, unnecessary, and unjust," said O. A. Dobbins, president of the Greene County Farm Bureau, speaking at a meeting of Ross Twp. Farm Bureau in the school Tuesday night.

"It is misleading because instead of being a tax limitation amendment, it is a clean-cut classification proposition, and is throwing everything open to the legislature to fix rates as low as they please on any class of property. There is an understanding among the organizations pushing this amendment, that land and homes will get a fifteen mill rate, while intangibles will draw only two to five mills, and then perhaps they will be turned in for tax. But you cannot legislate morality into a people. The man who would not turn it in at 2 per cent (as now), will not at 1 per cent or even one-half of 1 per cent."

"It is a deliberate move on the part of many interests to legalize what they are now doing illegally. This same classification howl has been brought before the people about eleven times in the past seven years, and in almost every instance voted down, so general opinion must be that it is wrong in principle."

"The limitation idea is misleading for in the first clause of the proposed amendment it says that laws may be passed authorizing a higher rate when voted by the people, which they will do as they have in the past, for we now have the same limit by statute yet the voters have voted a higher rate in almost every taxing district in Ohio."

"The public bonds that are out must be paid, and the schedule plainly says that the limit does not apply until they are paid twenty, thirty or fifty years from now, so on the face of it the limitation idea is plainly misleading.

"Unnecessary: Almost every reform, they are telling us, will be brought about by the adoption of this amendment, is now within the power of the legislature to give us. Take for example double taxation. Why should a person who owns a farm, and half of it mortgaged, pay tax on all? And the man holding the mortgage note pay on his half of the farm, if he is honest?"

"The legislature has seen fit to take care of Ohio corporations, but not the farmer or home owner. In other words, a factory organized as a corporation in Ohio pays tax on its property—then why should the share-holders or stock-holders be taxed again on each share of this same property? This is not the case because it would be unfair, but the same pressure has not been brought to bear for the benefit of the farmer. It is now within the power of the legislature to relieve all double taxation, and for this reason this proposed amendment is unnecessary."

"Unfair: All property should pay its share of tax."

"Because a man has his wealth in the form of bank deposits, building and loan deposits, or bonds, is no reason why he should pay less than the home owner or farmer who has his property in a visible form."

"Remember that bonds now out

VISIT TO TESTING LABORATORY OF MANUFACTURER

Full Of Interest

Fadeometer One Of Interesting Devices For Testing Merchandise

Did you ever here of a fadeometer? It is one of a number of clever devices used in the Marshall Field and Company Wholesale Laboratory. As the name implies, it is used to test the color fastness of materials and is so constructed that it simulates very perfectly the effect of sunshine.

This organization maintains a laboratory with full chemical and physical testing equipment and a skilled chemist is constantly busy testing and experimenting on the many lines of merchandise which carries the Field shield—the guarantee of quality.

Strong electric lights are used to produce the effect of the heat and light of the sun's rays. A material which is fast enough in color to pass a satisfactory test is durable indeed. A sixty hour test in the Fadeometer produces the same effect as one hundred hours of sunshine—and rarely is any material subjected to so much direct contact with sunshine in the ordinary period of wear.

Many other devices are used which are equally interesting. There is a Launderometer which tests the washing and wearing quality of merchandise. A tensile strength machine records the strength per square inch of fabrics. A carpet abrasion machine is used to subject napped materials such as rugs, velvets and velours to wearing tests.

With such equipment the Field chemist is able to report with accuracy the quality of the merchandise which comes to him for testing. Thus it is that the quality of Field merchandise is always standard. Thus it is that Jobe's through their affiliation with this great house can assure their customers of quality merchandise.

must be paid over and above the fifteen mill limitation if necessary, and many of these bonds will be still unpaid ten or twenty years from now.

"The second sentence of Section 2 says lands and improvements thereon shall be taxed by uniform rule according to value, but in another place it says laws may be passed taxing other classes of property. What will the legislature do?"

"Remember again that the legislature will have full power to fix rates on different classes of property and that there is no recourse or remedy by referendum, as the initiative and referendum does not apply to tax laws.

"With this rate fixing power vested in the legislature, it will make our taxing laws a political issue. Ohio will have to endure for taxes what our national government does for tariff. Business will be effected and unsettled as the result."

The Theater

With a goal of 300 in view, sale of membership tickets in the Little Theater Guild of Xenia is reported progressing favorably by Miss Allegra Hawes, membership chairman.

Membership workers, are pointing out also, that while it is a Xenian organization, the membership rolls are open to anyone in Greene County interested in amateur theatrical work. They believe that 300 is not too many to expect from this territory in support of a movement that has drawn many times that number to its ranks in communities smaller than Xenia.

The Guild membership entitles the holder to an opportunity to participate in the public dramatic presentations of the organization each year, if the member is so inclined.

It also gives the member a voice in guiding the Guild, in selection of its plays and entitles the member to see all the Guild plays if he is not engaged in their actual production.

Last year the Guild presented four offerings for the public, and tickets were sold for these plays. This year, however, it is planned to present the season's program only for members and tickets will not be sold non-members.

The Guild will make its 1929-30 debut November 8 with "Tea for Three", a small-scale production, featuring only three important parts. These will be taken by Miss Margaret Hattie, Marcus McCallister and Fred Flynn. Minor supporting parts have been assigned to Miss Helen Spahr and Bob Ellis.

TAX AMENDMENT IS SUPPORTED IN TALK BEFORE KIWANISANS

"In many respects the so-called 'uniform system' of taxation now in effect in Ohio today is as unscientific, unfair and unjust as the Roman system of taxation in operation 2,000 years ago and as out of date as the canal boat, the ox-cart or the chariot," said Earl C. Rohn, assistant cashier of the Ohio National Bank, Lima, O., in his talk before the Kiwanis Club dinner-meeting at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening, on the proposed "tax limit amendment."

"Taxation is as old as civilization, harking back through the ages to the beginning of recorded time. But the laws made even as far back as 1851 the year the present tax system of Ohio was originated, are not suited to the present day economic and social needs, any more than those made in the time of Caesar."

"In many respects our system parallels that of the ancient times which were so heavy that the people were reduced to poverty. It was the Romans who divided their territory up into districts and sold the districts to the highest bidders. The successful bidder then proceeded to collect the tax and they did a real job of it," he said.

"In many such ways the present system of taxation in Ohio threatens to destroy our prosperity and reduce our land owners to a state of penury unless the 'Tax Limit Amendment' is ratified by the Ohio voters, November 5."

In illustrating the present situation in Ohio, Rohn said that 20 per cent of the property which is real estate is paying 70 per cent of the total tax and that 70 per cent of the property, which is intangible and tangible wealth, pays but 30 per cent of the tax.

"According to the figures gathered by the 'All-Ohio Tax League' more than fifteen billions of dollars of intangible wealth absolutely escapes taxation each year," Rohn said, "and yet in the face of such an indictment as this, there are some who are still clinging to the 'uniform rule' because they say they are opposed to classification."

"Under the so-called 'uniform rule' as practised in Ohio we have had and now have a type of classification which is vicious in character and unscientific in principle," he continued.

"This question readily falls into three parts, cause, effect and remedy. In 1851 the constitution of Ohio was amended to provide a system of taxation known as the 'uniform rule.' Under this system laws were passed taxing at a uniform rate all monies, credits, investments in stocks and bonds, joint stock companies and otherwise, and all real estate and personal property at the true value in money."

"Gone are the days of seventy years ago. Great changes have taken place in population, in forms of wealth, in industrial expansion and diversification. But we still cling to this ancient relic of the past and by legislative tinkering try to shape it to modern times and conditions. It can't be done."

"An honest effort to enforce the 'uniform rule' in Ohio would result in ruin to the state. It has been proven that the system cannot be enforced in the true letter and spirit of the constitution."

"Our people have but three avenues to escape this rule," Rohn said, "the first—by the creation of trusts outside the state by men of wealth. This now is being done and millions of dollars are leaving Ohio annually. Second—by investment in tax free securities and third—by committing perjury once a year by swearing to a false report to tax authorities."

"Because of the tax situation in Ohio, new industries which would like to locate within the state because it is the crossroad of the nation, pass on to Michigan or Pennsylvania."

"Ohio under the so-called 'uniform rule' assesses seven times as much visible property as Kentucky, and millions less than Kentucky in intangibles, yet the return in stocks and bonds in Louisville alone is greater than the whole state of Ohio."

"Kentucky's intangibles pay 33 per cent of the state's taxes while Ohio's pay one per cent. Kentucky's real estate pays 32 per cent of the taxes of the state but Ohio's is forced to stand the burden to the extent of 75 per cent."

"The proposed 'Tax Limit Amendment' which will be brought before the voters next month, proposes but two things," Rohn said, "the first—a limit to taxation and the second to provide an equitable system to raise these taxes."

"The amendment was drafted, has the backing and active support of fourteen of the leading tax-paying organizations of the state. Back of these organizations, which cover agriculture, manufacturing, commerce and finance, are men who are tax payers whose judgment is sound and can be relied upon."

"We can trust the legislature," Rohn said in conclusion, "for every legislature acts upon the dictates of the electors and their wishes are known—and our legislature is no exception. If the voters of Ohio fail to pass the proposed 'Tax Limit Amendment' it will be one of the greatest wrongs thrust upon the state in many years."

Hallowe'en party but the program was informal.

The meeting took the form of a

DAYTON BOUND CAR CRUSHED BY TRUCK

The front vestibule of a Dayton and Xenia interurban car was crushed when a truck owned by the Miami Motor Co., Cincinnati, driven by C. J. Miller, Cincinnati, backed into the car on W. Main St., between Detroit and King St., as the car was starting for Dayton at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. Ezra Fitzwater, Dayton, motorman on the car, was showered with broken glass, but not hurt. Irvin Underwood, was the conductor. The truck was not damaged.

NEW BRIDGE RULE

XENIA bridge fans are interested in the new rule proposed by Sidney Lenz, bridge expert and adopted by the card committee of the Knickerbocker Whist Club, New York, which removes the "murder motive" from the game.

The rule substitutes the "challenge" for the "negative" or "informative double," and was adopted after a period of trial in regular play over a period of several months at the club. The application of the "challenge" is precisely the same as that of the negative double.

After the original bid by an adversary, the player holding a strong hand which he prefers not to bid himself; informs his partner and demands his partner to bid by using the words: "I challenge." The partner must respond by bidding his best suit.

The new rule is believed to make for a clearer understanding than the informative double, which was frequently difficult to distinguish from the business double. Lenz says: "Let the double be exactly what it says: an expressed hope to defeat the adverse bid."

SEVENTY MILLION CHRISTMAS SEALS RELEASED IN OHIO

Seventy million Christmas health seals will ring in Ohio's health greetings this year as a part of the nation wide fight against tuberculosis, according to Dr. Robert H. Bishop, Jr., of Cleveland, president of the Ohio Public Health Association.

The 1929 seal pictures a bell ringer, tugging at a bell. He is a gay little chap, wearing a red cloak, a yellow cap and yellow trousers. He and his bell stand out against a dark blue background. The double barred cross, international emblem of the tuberculosis worker, appears in red in the lower right hand corner and across the top of the seal in white letters are the words, "Health Greetings 1929."

"Although the tuberculosis death rate has been reduced over one-half in the last twenty years, the fact still remains that one out of every four persons, who die between the ages of 15 and 34, are victims of the disease," Dr. Bishop points out.

Distribution of the health seals will start the day after Thanksgiving and will continue until the day before Christmas. Health groups in towns and counties throughout the state will take part in the sale for the twenty-second consecutive year.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Glen Patterson, assistant coach and gym director, at Central High is beginning to organize volleyball ball teams among his gym classes.

Each team will be given the name of some Ohio college or university and will try its best to win for that school.

The one and out system will be used. By this we mean that when a team loses a game it is eliminated from further play.

Much interest is being shown by everyone in the gym classes and a close race is expected. A team captained by Kenneth Finlay won last year's championship after a hard battle with the fighting little junior high team.

Coach Patterson will have full charge of the play, as he did last year, and according to "Pat," this year's play will bring forth some good talent.

All games will be played in the Central gymnasium.

when Zemo touches the scalp
Douse cooling, healing, cleansing ZEMO on the scalp and rub vigorously. If you're like thousands of others the way dandruff vanishes and itching stops will be a surprise and delight. Use this remarkable, clean, family antiseptic liquid freely. It's the sensible way to get rid of Dandruff and Itching Scalp. Keep ZEMO handy. Safe and dependable for all forms of itching irritations of the skin and scalp. 35c, 60c and $1.00.

Safeguard your health with PLUTO

Wash away constipation. Water is nature's way of cleansing. Pluto Water provides a thorough, tonic, healthful internal bath. Waste materials are "flushed out." The mineral content of Pluto Water causes it to pass through the intestines in 30 minutes to 2 hours—no griping, no habit-forming. Physicians prescribe it. Bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

WHICH Shall it be?

Smoked curtains, or a clean home throughout? Annoyance, or contentment? Uneven heat, or automatically controlled temperature in all rooms? Another Winter of fuel and ash shoveling or evenings of leisure with the family the radio or the newspaper? A piled-up basement or a clean cellar with play rooms for the children—which shall it be.

Install Gas Heat

and let it be automatically controlled. Light your furnace or boiler in the fall—turn it off in the Spring. No boiler, no tending. Phone now for an estimate of gas heat for your home.

MINCE AND PUMPKIN PIES MEANT HOURS OF HARD WORK

NOW IT'S MERELY OPENING A CAN!

PUMPKIN MINCEMEAT

Instead of hours of tedious preparing and cooking of pumpkin just open a can of this rich, smooth, fine grained pumpkin, add milk and spices—and see what a wonderful pie you can have with only a few minutes work. Once used this delicious pumpkin and you will see how unnecessary is the messy task of preparing pumpkin in your own kitchen.

Mother's best mincemeat that cost so much in time, work and expensive ingredients was never finer than this rich, spicy, fine flavored mincemeat. Tender, finely minced meat—fresh juicy apples, big fat raisins, and all the goodies of the finest home made are in it. Soak a package over night in a pint of water and then carefully examine every ingredient and you will see how perfect this is. It is far less expensive than home made and is truly delicious.

"E" BRAND WET MINCEMEAT

A superb quality mincemeat that is just ready to put in the crusts. Make your pies of this mincemeat and you will soon have a reputation as a marvelous pie baker.
